Wed Soerensen? "Certainly Not" Garbo Declares

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD Calif April 23—Greta Garbo who came from her native Sweden to reach the heights as a film star and then lead a hermit like existence found herself projected today into two events that held the interest of the movie colony

First was a denial of reports from Stockholm that she was to marry William Soerensen reputedly wealthy society man of that city

Through her manager Harry Edington Miss Garbo let it be known she considers Soerensen anything but a friend much less a husband to be

Soerensen was a visitor in Hollywood 18 months ago Following his departure an unauthorized life story of Miss Garbo by a woman writer was published Studio officials said the actress traced the origin of the story to Soerensen and has never forgiven him

Then there was the report of refusal of the actress to sign a new contract with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios Her current picture it was reported will be her last Her present agreement with the studio expires in June

Acquaintances recently quoted Miss Garbo as saying

"I think I go back to Sweden"

Although she has no close friends in Hollywood acquaintances say she is worth more than a million dollars

PART OF MINE REGION TROOPS ORDERED HOME

Small Force All That Is Needed Now, Governor Decides

FOUR COMPANIES LEAVE

White Hopes for Consummation of Peace Program Soon

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O April 23 — Expressing the opinion that order had been restored to such an extent that a small body of National guardsmen could cope with emergencies arising in the eastern Ohio coal strike field Governor White today ordered the withdrawal of four National guard companies now on duty there

The four companies which will entrain for home this afternoon are A of Cleveland and I J and M of Akron Those remaining on strike duty are B of Cleveland C of Canton H of Youngstown and K of Akron These companies are part of the 145th infantry

The companies remaining in the field and normally having about 60 in each will be strengthened to 75 Men will be taken from the companies released today to fill up

Thinks 350 Adequate

Governor White said he believed that order had been restored to such a point that county officers with the aid of the small body of troopers remaining in the field—about 350—could maintain order

The chief executive also called attention to the great expense the state was put to every day to keep the soldiers in the field

The danger of violence has been lessened the governor said by the apparent desire of those responsible for disorders to be less inclined to openly flaunt the law

Governor White said he hoped the day was not far distant when he could withdraw the remainder of the soldiers and proceed with the plan he has in mind for the restoration of peace in the strike region

Several days ago the governor received appeals from a number of organizations in various sections of the state demanding that he withdraw the soldiers To those he replied he could with draw the soldiers whenever peace was restored There have been no disorders in the field for several days the governor's office said

Several hundred other delegates to the congress were arrested in various parts of India

Mrs Naidu's trial was the shortest ever held in Bombay It lasted only 10 minutes

Mrs Naidu accepted the sentence with amused indifference beaming on the magistrate and those around her She is the last member of Mahatma Gandhi's cabinet of 15 to go to jail

BUCYRUS WINS DECISION IN N. Y. C. SHOP FIGHT

EXPERTS NOT ALLOWED TO QUIZ MASSIE

Darrow Refuses To Permit Observation of Defendants by Alienists

KELLY FORESEES BATTLE

Prosecutor Marshals Forces for Attempt To Convict Quartet

By The Associated Press

HONOLULU April 23 Circumvention of the insanity defense of Lieut Thomas H Massie was attempted today by Prosecutor John C Kelley and Chairman Clarence Darrow of Jurist to limit

Darrow aged leader of the defense of the four persons accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai refused to permit Kelley's alienists to put the young navy officer under observation

Montgomery Winn Darrow's assistant said

We don't contend Mr Massie is insane now so we fail to see why their examination of him is necessary

Kelley said he believed Massie never was insane and he hoped with testimony of alienists to convert the jury to his belief

Kelley Sees Battle

Marshaling his forces for resumption of the trial after two days of delay the prosecutor said he would ask the court to instruct the jurors that the accused quartet could be convicted of second degree murder as charged even though the jury might believe Massie was mentally deranged when he held the pistol that killed the native

Kelley had counted upon the alienists Dr Joseph Catton of San Francisco and Dr Paul Bowers of Los Angeles for testimony to offset that of defense alienists who pronounced Massie insane at the moment Kahahawai allegedly met before him and admitted attacking Mrs Thalia Massie his wife

There being no territorial law compelling the defense to subject Massie to a prosecution examination Kelly requested that privilege of Darrow yesterday

Darrow master of defense strategy seized the idea

Four Witnesses Jailed

Four prosecution rebuttal witnesses remain to be called They are Dr Robert Bliss city and county physician Cotton Bowers and Miss Marjorie Peters Kelley's stenographer who took statements from the defendants

Although Kelly's immediate problem was the opening of the rebuttal he awaited one of the hardest battles in spectacular case would be over the instructions to the judicially sealed jury

Darrow spent yesterday preparing proposed instructions to the jury He refuse to reveal their nature like Defendant Massie his mother in law Mrs Granville Fortescue Lieut Albert O Jones went to an outing at the beach

Brooks Fletcher Helps Party Win

Brooks Fletcher

In 1924 in the face of a great Republican landslide the voters enabled Brooks Fletcher to win ahead of his ticket in his home county, Marion, by 3,173 votes and in the entire District he ran the remarkable number of 12,537 votes ahead of his ticket.

Fletcher Carries Every County

Again in 1926 Brooks Fletcher, of Marion, carried every county in the District.

Let us nominate for Congress a man who has a national reputation for character and ability and who has an outstanding record of victory for his party.

Fletcher Defeats Mouser at Home

In 1928 in the face of still another overwhelming Republican landslide Brooks Fletcher defeated his opponent in his opponent's home county, running 1,042 votes ahead of his ticket in Marion County, while his opponent who also lives in Marion, fell 1,026 votes behind the head of his ticket.

Runs More than 13,000 Ahead

But more surprising still in the face of the overwhelming Republican landslide in 1928 Fletcher's Marion opponent fell 14,313 votes behind the head of his ticket in the District, while Brooks Fletcher ran up the astonishing total for his party of 13,105 votes ahead of his ticket.

We Can Win With Brooks Fletcher

These official facts should be sufficient proof to all thinking Democrats that if we want to win in the 5th District this fall we should unite in the interest of victory and nominate Brooks Fletcher, of Marion, for Congress at the primaries, May 10th.

Let us vote for Brooks Fletcher for Congress, win again, and redeem our district.

Just Things

—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

Spring.

THE annual renovating spell is upon us again and once more we will get out the treasures, love 'em over and put 'em back. We may put them in another place just to sort of ease our conscience for not throwing them away, but it's a derby ticket to a doughnut that they will be kept for another year. Why do we do it? Oh, I don't know, there's just something about parting with the handleless mirror the heads that not even a sissy would want, the convention badges and programs and—oh, well you know what there is in that old dust-covered box. And speaking of spring, just think how hot it is going to get before it gets cold again.

Nuisances.

THE time and the place for carrying on conversations have a whole lot to do with just how popular you are going to be with the folks who are compelled to "listen in." We may have suspicioned this but now we know that the best way to set yourself up as a target for glares and more glares is to tell all you know to the girl friend while everyone else around is trying to hear the lines of the show. "Is he going to be necessary," J. G. H. asks, "to do as they did years ago request from the platform that the audience be quiet during the performance or have ushers go around and prod the talkers into silence?" This and more equally just criticism of folks guilty of such annoying behavior was provoked by the writer having to sit through an evening of personal comments and opinions instead of hearing a musical treat. It is to be deplored, and the sad part of it is that there is no way of getting even. It was too late to remedy that offense but the writer has in mind other times and wondered if perhaps a word on the subject might not help make the next occasion "more enjoyable for those who really appreciate things rather than affording some folks just another place to go."

• • •

THE incident reminds some folks of the early days of the cinema when at the beginning of every show there would be flashed on the screen, "Ladies will please remove their hats." And woe be unto those who ignored the order. The sign was flashed on again and again, says she, and there was no show until every woman removed her hat, regardless of whether she had neglected to put on all her "tats" or left one of her "switches" at home. Of course you might walk out but who wanted to do that when they had squandered a thin dime in the nickelodeon.

Program Complete for Annual Club Five Arts Festival

PLANS of Marion club women will lead to the First Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon and evening where they will attend the second annual fine arts festival sponsored by the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs. The affair will climax the season's programs and at this time Mrs. Grover C. Snyder, newly-elected president of the federation will receive the gavel from Mrs. Harold K. Mouser who has served as head of the clubs for two years. The prize winning poems and stories, submitted in the contest held by the clubs, will be announced at this time.

Women of the city, other than those affiliated with clubs of the federation are also invited to attend the festival. An admission charge of 25 cents will be made.

The program is one of the most elaborate sponsored by the clubs and promises to be one of outstanding merit and entertainment.

To Plant Trees

The planting and dedication of a number of Japanese cherry trees along Vernon Heights boulevard near the Harding memorial will open the festival at 3 o'clock. This will be the contribution of the conservation department of the federation to the festival and will be in charge of Mrs. Grover C. Snyder, conservation chairman. Mother Singer clubs of the city will lead the singing of "America" under the direction of Mrs. Eugene H. Moore and the invocation will be spoken by Rev. J. M. Fisher, pastor of Lee Street Presbyterian church. Arthur S. Brooks, Boy Scout executive, will preside as master of ceremonies and the dedicatory address will be given by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer. Mrs. Mouser will present the trees to the city and the acceptance will be made by Mayor W. C. Phillians. The program will include a reading, "Trees," Joyce Kilmer, by Mrs. Rodney B. Hume and a song "Mount Vernon Bells" by the Mother Singer clubs. Mrs. Ruth Conard, president of Central District of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, will give a short talk and the benediction will be spoken by Rev. Fisher.

Following the dedication of the trees the clubwomen will assemble at the church where for half an hour they will be given an opportunity to view the flower show and art exhibit. Mrs. Robert White is chairman for the flower show and Mrs. Walter E. Hane is in charge of the art exhibit. At 4:30 o'clock their interests will be drawn to "Art and Drama." A talk, "Practical Ideals in Interior Decorating for 1932," will be given by G. V. Paschall of the H. Schaffner Co. and a one-act play, directed by Miss Emma O'Brein will be presented by Mrs. O. G. Stephenson, Mrs. Homer Waddell and Mrs. Frank M. Knapp.

Lunch Planned

A social hour has been arranged for 5:15 o'clock in charge of Mrs. W. O. Nippert and Miss Christine Rieck. At this time the members will enjoy a box lunch with tea and coffee served by the social committee.

Assembly singing will open the program at 6:30 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Eugene H. Moore. Mrs. Mouser will present Mrs. Conard and Mrs. W. N. Harder national committee chairman of fine arts, and at 7 o'clock a play, "Mother Earth and Her Daughters," will be presented under the direction of Mrs. W. D. Brown. Those taking part in the play are Mrs. T. R. Evans, Mrs. Rex Kilbourne, Mrs. Merle Hamilton, Miss Dorothy Briggs, Miss Hallie Horne, Mrs. H. C. Colley and Miss Ruth Starr.

Miss Mabel Wheatley is in charge of the presentation of the "Living Pictures" at 7:30 o'clock. These will be given by Margaret Ann Mautz, Miss Dorothy Strellitz, Miss Elizabeth Hinklin, Miss Mary Wright, Miss Jean Olewiler, Miss Pauline Shelton, Miss Philomen Gregg and Dale Yambert.

Musical Program

Music at this time will include an organ number, "Scherzoso," Rogers, played by Mrs. R. O. Bresler, and the presentation of a piano ensemble composed of Miss Grace Kline, Miss Bernice Cougle, Mrs. Clyde Coulter and Mrs. H. K. Mouser. They will play "Double Concerto in E Flat," Mozart, first and last movements and "Two Etudes in G Flat," Chopin. Robert Knauss, guest organist, will be heard in a group of three numbers, "Daguerretype of an Old Mother," Gaul, 'Scherzo' Sonata in E Minor, and "Toccata in G," Rogers. The piano ensemble will present the "Coronation Scene" from "Boris Godounoff" by Moussorgsky. The program will include the presentation of a hymn the words of which were written by Mrs. James G. Cooper. The hymn will be sung by Mrs. C. L. Rutherford. At this time Mrs. E. H. Morgan, literature chairman will announce the prize winning stories and poems.

An operetta, "The Lost Necklace," will be presented by Miss Madaline Dunlap, Mrs. Bland Cresap, Miss Lucile Thomas, Miss Doris Gump, Miss Virginia Fowler, Miss Bernice DeMasters, Miss Harriet Anne Nippert, Mrs. J. H. Houghton, Mr. Martha Smallwood, Miss Ruth Louise Henderson, Miss Mary Hetsinger, Miss Virginia Richmire, Miss Eleanor Morganroth, Miss Lois Snodgrass, Miss Rosanna Crow, Miss Lucile Hunt, Miss Elizabeth Curl and Miss Katherine Dynar.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday April 24

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE, although holding augury of an important opening of a sudden and possible radical nature, also has portent of delays, postponements and obstacles as well as financial hazard. While change may benefit yet there are many angles of defeat and harassment to cope with, personal as well as business.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting experience, with some excellent opportunities for change and advancement, yet there are also stubborn obstacles and other trials to be managed or vanquished. These may influence the private as well as employment and business affiliations. A child born on this day may be adventurous, skillful, industrious and also personally popular and influential.

• • •

For Monday, April 25

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is excellent for promotion, preferment and favors from employers and also for the launching of new projects and propositions. With energy, application and diplomacy much is to be attained, especially in negotiation with large corporations, mergers or secret societies. But sign all papers with wisdom and precaution. Private affairs may have unique or unexpected denouements.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a splendid year in employment, in new ventures and in all that may be attained by industry and diligence. Sign all writings with precaution. A child born on this day should be clever, ambitious, industrious and should attain confidential place in employment or with large corporations or secret societies.

Entertain Class.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred White entertained the Onward Bible class of Oakland Evangelical Sunday school Thursday night at their home at 715 Woodrow avenue. Songs and contests furnished entertainment and Ben White contributed several musical selections. The next meeting will be May 19.

OLD-FASHIONED

Jerry Learns That One Girl Can Be Modern and Still Retain All the Semblance and Charm of the Previous Generation

She was leaning on the forward rail—a slim small figure in white
Below the stevedores were loading cotton She watched intently

THEY had met on the New Orleans boat. Jerome Brent, tired and disgusted from a week of trying to infiltrate Northern business methods into the slow and sighty soggy minds of certain easy-going Southern gentlemen had come aboard with a single abiding thought during him as the while of the wisp—the thought of five long restful, tropical days in the arms of a cushioned deck chair with the soft sea breeze playing gently across his fevered brow. Five whole days of nothing at all to do but watch the waves go by. He decided any one or everyone from the comfort of that backgoing chair.

And then he had seen Nancy.

She was leaning on the forward rail—a slim small figure all in white. Below a group of Negro stevedores was loading cotton. The girl was watching them idly. Quite evidently it was the first time she had seen a ship loaded and the spectacle held her fascinated.

It was the air of escape more of being alone and rather helpless in the face of circumstances over which that had first attracted Jerry. She was so different from the girls he knew—he disapproved of business girls in the office and the red lipped wise eyed maidens he encountered with and coming to dinner at the homes of friends.

To tell the truth Jerry Brent had a way of becoming a misogynist at times when one is beginning to want to settle down and the world constantly seems populated only with hard eyed hard knocking hard drinking bits of flaming youth or equally hard eyed nervous over straining pieces of female mechanism one is apt to incline that way. Especially if one has been turned down with none too much finesse by a thoroughly modern up-to-date young woman who frankly preferred her business of facts and figures to that of managing a husband. Jerry had. As far as Jerry Brent was concerned the modern business woman was on

Perhaps that was why the girl in white appealed to him so strongly. There was something tentative and almost shy about her. Certainly she had none of the arrogant boldness and self confidence that marked the ladies of his disdain. When he had first spoken to her—some casual remark about the picturesqueness of the waterfront—she had answered readily enough but with a certain shy reserve that he found himself at some pains to break down. Strangely enough he had wanted to break it down. He wanted to hear her talk to see her raise her eyes to his to watch an elusive little smile flicker about the corners of her small red mouth.

AND so somewhat to his own surprise as the boat steamed down the muddy Mississippi he had found himself ensconced in the deck chair next to hers. Of his own accord he had arranged it so forgetting completely that this was to be a haven for him a trip of unsocial solitude. After that it had seemed quite natural for him to be telling her of his experiences in the South and his bafflement at the Southern business attitude of carefree take your time.

He gathered in turn that she had been visiting in New Orleans and together they enthused over the picturesque highlights of that lotus and haunting city. The delicious puff potatoes at Antoine's the quaint old courtyard gardens surrounded by lacily iron grillwork the Old World charm of the Cabildo. He described the hot and crowded gambling houses the night seeing bus he had taken one blistering afternoon in a moment of temporary aberration. Suddenly with no intermediate step they were old friends.

Since nowhere in the world does acquaintanceship progress with such astonishing speed as on shipboard they did not stop there. It was inevitable that they should go further. In a little world of their own hemmed in by sparkling white capped waves and soft illimitable sky their relationship grew by leaps and bounds. The rest of the passengers might not have existed except for the occasional chuckle of amusement they afforded.

There was the agricultural couple at their table for instance—a lean lathlike man and a round little dowdy woman both inordinately interested in the menu both given to an obvious sort of humor that waited expectantly for applause. And the youthfully infatuated boy and girl who had met on the train coming down. Except for a few brief hours at night they had not been separated since. They were both incorrigible starers—the boy sunburned gangling and none too ill at ease apparently fascinated by Nancy's blue eyed daintiness the girl equally enthralled by Jerry's tall dark good looks.

"I'm going to have hysterics in my soup some night if those two children don't stop gorging at us," Nancy announced the second day. She and Jerry had escaped to the deck after a particularly avid barrage of stares and Nancy was chuckling amusedly. But Jerry did not smile.

"The girl's a little fool," he said contemptuously. "And the boy's not much better."

Nancy turned toward him in amazement.

"But don't you think they're funny?" she asked. "Aren't you amused by the way she hangs over his chair and gazes into his eyes—as if she's not starving at you of course and except to eat they never let go of each other for a minute. He drags her around like a bale of hay and she clings to him to help him — and his neck too after dark — as though she couldn't bear to be separated from him for a second. Surely such wholesale, child devotion is touching."

Nancy was laughing outright now. But her companion merely frowned.

"The girl said with annoyance "is a fool. Any one can see that she's in love with the man. He's a selfish spoiler in some business house and old enough to be her father—been there for two years. And he's only 21 now," he added disapprovingly.

"Well you have managed to cover a lot of ground in just two days. Nancy teased but the man refused to be diverted. He was in no mood on his favorite topic.

"That's what business does to a girl," he was saying severely. "Meeting on the streets or working with men forced to fight for every penny they get or lose day after day and year after year—I hate to see it. These free and untrammeled girls of today make me mad. They have no chance or resistance to the habit of doing all the pursuing instead of leaving it to the men. Look at the shameless way this girl is throwing herself at that boy's head. It's disgusting."

"Do you think" now on impulse "it's what first attracted me to you? I said—

Oh you saw me playing myself a sorry figure. I see was an impish note in Nancy's voice. "That's you Mr. Brent.

"You know that isn't what I meant" Jerry replied. It was very opportune that the boat's whistle should blow at that instant. Nancy had been talking about it for hours. Already the docks of New Orleans were in sight. Slowly timidly she drew back from the side of the boat. Her head was bent low and over above a small white face that flashed up to meet it.

Nancy the man whispered and kissed her. For a long moment their lips clung. "Sweetheart you know I love you don't you? You've felt it all along—you must have. I've told about you darling. You're so little and helpless and young—I want to take care of you always. Oh I've found you dear at last—my sweet unspoiled old fashioned girl!"

The slender form in his arms moved suddenly. Nancy stiffened. Old fashioned! There it was again. She was beginning to hate the word. She struggled gradually she drew herself away.

The man's arms dropped. "Nancy what is it? What have I done?"

There was hurt in his voice hurt and complete bewilderment. It was all Nancy could do to keep from throwing herself back into his arms. He was so dear! But she must! she told herself sternly—she had something to tell him first.

Jerry. It was a timid little voice that uttered the word. "Jerry dear." That was better. The man started forward but with one small hand she held him back. "Jerry I want you to look at me—closely."

"I've been doing nothing else darling for five whole days." Jerry laughed tenderly.

"Yes I know. But Jerry have you really been looking at me or at somebody you think is me? How old am I Jerry?"

"Why Nancy it's funny but I don't know do I?" He hesitated. "You're about 20 or so aren't you?"

"Jerry I am 28."

THERE was a pause. Obviously the statement meant nothing at all to Jerry. He was surprised yes but after all what difference did it make? This was the girl he loved!

"I don't care if you're 28 or 98 Nancy." He was grinning relievedly now. "So this was what the child had been worrying about! He made as if to gather her in his arms. But still she held back.

"Oh Jerry you make it so hard" she murmured. "But I've got to tell you. Jerry listen. I'm not the kind of girl you've imagined me at all. I haven't had a chance to be. For twelve years I've been on my own—in business. You said you couldn't picture me in an office." She laughed shakily. "If you could see the kind of offices I've been in. First taking dictation in a little cubby hole at the back of a store then when I couldn't stand that any longer for six years pounding a typewriter in one newspaper office after another then on a magazine. I'm still in an office Jerry through now it's one of my own. I write. And every cent I own I've earned by pounding out copy on a typewriter."

"You know I've just come back from New Orleans." Her voice was steady now but the blue eyes gazed unseeingly into the fog ahead. She was afraid to look at Jerry's face. "What do you suppose I was doing there? Not visiting as you thought—frivoling about like a carefree butterfly—but attending a convention of other business women like myself. Like myself Jerry. The magazine I write for sent me there. I had to make a speech. That dress I hate on Jerry—the one you thought so sweet and old-fashioned—I bought especially for that speech. It's a Paris model Jerry—one of the very newest—and I chose it because I wanted to appear a thoroughly convincing up-to-the-minute business woman. And that's what I am Jerry."

Fleetingly, she stole a look at his face. It was turned away. She couldn't tell what expression the dark eyes held. There was a note of pleading in her voice as she went on.

"I can't help the way I look Jerry. I can't help it that I'm little and shy and that people always think me younger than I am. Jerry a girl can stand on her own feet she can be self supporting and capable and efficient and still remain feminine. It's no use Jerry." She stopped. The man said nothing. Proudly the girl threw back her head.

"I'm glad she said glad that I'm a business woman! I'm glad I can earn my own living glad I'm not the helpless clinging vine sort of person you thought me. Why I'd be ashamed to be! You pinned that character on me Jerry and you wouldn't let me explain. I tried to but you wouldn't let me. And at first I didn't care. I thought it rather a joke to let you go on thinking me so different from what I really am. But then suddenly I wasn't funny any more. And now—now that you—now that I——"

She couldn't go on. One small hand fluttering out to the silent figure by her side asked mutely for help. But Jerry did not move. There was something cold and austere in his attitude.

"I'm sorry Jerry" she said. The words sounded flat and unreal. Her voice was cold—cold with the stillness that held the man beside her in its thrall. "I suppose I should have told you sooner. But at least I've told you now. Now you feel. And—" she paused a moment. It was hard to say—"I probably won't see you again. Let's—good by."

"Good by" he said mechanically. And like a wraith of the surrounding mist she was gone.

PURPOSELESS she didn't go down to her stateroom but ran the deck of the boat hoping against hope that she could get something to occupy her mind afterward. Purposely she was trying to be practical about packing. And when she emerged the boat had been tied to the dock for a half hour and most of the passengers had landed. She was the last person ashore.

Hatless by the time she reached a cab Jerry might be waiting. She didn't take that conscious step but was afraid? Even though he didn't appear then he must have recognized now that she hadn't really meant to desert him. He had jumped to conclusions.

The stevedores and boys and girls were getting into a cab and Nancy stepped from the gangplank.

Mr. Brent was the first one off the boat they chorused loudly. Evidently they were consumed with curiosity to know why Nancy hadn't been with him but Nancy forestalled them by hailing a cab of her own. Blindly she climbed into it and gave the address of her apartment.

There was something radically wrong with that latest Soapure ad. The advertising manager of Brown & Whitcomb's Chicago office sat at his desk of a sunny autumn morning with a worried crease between his brows. It was up to him to find out where the trouble lay. He sighed. Somehow, Jerry Brent had done quite a bit of sighing lately. There seemed to be something radically wrong with other things besides the Soapure ad.

He picked up a magazine from the pile at his elbow. It was a woman's magazine of course but the facts were there. She had painted the background faithfully and told the story truly—she was safe in doing that for no one who read it could be any the wiser except just they two. Why was it the girl in the story had said "Old Fashioned girls are for old fashioned men and me her exists only in the modern business woman with a modern knowledge of the world and I'm glad of it. I'm ready to take my place beside a modern man not to sit over a tea and tell him how wonderful he is but to give him the help and support of a trained intelligent partner. Clever efficient impatient, unafraid of life because she knows something about it—one who plays the game squarely to the end."

And that was the start of companionship ended Brent's thoughts away. It was because she'd clipped out one of her hard drawn—typical picture of a successful business girl to flaunt in his face on the real person as she was to its beauty!

But it was now. In all its outrageous redolence the magazine fluttered open at the page. And there was the picture!

AN EXPERIENCED pretty young woman skilled in the New York fashion. Likes a bath on the scent. Be made for the next telephone booth at 5:15 this evening. Not to think of you lying on the phone before 10 o'clock in the morning—not even a business girl. Reluctantly he turned to the restaurant.

It was exactly fifteen minutes after fifteen minutes of noble self restraint on the part when the telephone in Nancy's apartment tinkled softly. Once—three times—four—persistently it rang. Dazedly unbelievingly he rose up the receiver at last. She wasn't there! He'd never thought of that!

For a moment he was stumped. Then his jaw set with grim determination. The magazine that had published her story! They'd know where she could be reached.

A horrid delay while the operator called the number. "Miss Baird? Sorry but there was no Miss Baird on the staff. Oh Miss Nancy Baird? Yes she was a contributor yes they had her office address. Who was calling please? A friend from out of town—a very dear friend? Well if they supposed it would be all right to give it to him.

As if released from a spring Jerry sprang from the booth. He was in a cab and away, among a million other cabs and trucks and shining private cars for three endless minutes at a time stopping at last before a modern office building. There was no elevator. Jerry took the intervening flights two steps at a time. Boldly the knocker fell on the door of No. 315.

"Come in."

Jerry entered. Nancy in an old blue smock seated at a typewriter. Nancy with puffy eyes and a frown of concentration between her brows!

"Jerry!"

The man wasted no words. "You" he said "are going to marry me."

The girl at the typewriter gasped. She opened her mouth—and closed it again. In three long strides Jerry stood before her. Swiftly tenderly, confidently, he drew her to her feet.

"But why did you write that story?"

The heart shaped little face flushed rosily. The brown head dropped. The blue eyes anchored on his second vest button.

"You wanted me to and it didn't you?" the man demanded. "You wanted me to realize what a fool I'd been—what a silly proud stiff-necked fool? Didn't you Nancy? Answer me."

Slowly slowly the blue eyes crept upward. They fastened on his necktie, they paused at his chin they rested on his nose—and at last they met his eyes.

"Yes Jerry I wanted you to see it."

He had both hands now. She couldn't escape.

"Why?"

"Because I wanted you to know I hadn't deceived you on purpose. Because I wanted to make you understand what you wouldn't understand that last night on shipboard when you were so angry Jerry. I'm not hard and bad and spoiled. I'm modern but I'm not modern little."

And that was all Nancy? That was all you wanted?

The small head dropped again. The slight figure turned away straining to be free.

"Answer me Nancy!"

"No, Jerry." It was a small shaky voice apparently addressed to some one outside the window that murmured the two words. "There was—something else."

"What Nancy? What else did you want?"

"Jerry must I say it?" The little low voice was barely a whisper.

"Yes Nancy please! Say it—dear. There's nothing else in all the world I want to hear!"

"Well, if you must know Jerry, I wanted—you."

"Darling!" Hungrily greedily, he caught her in his arms. There was a long pause.

Then "Jerry are you sure?" The voice was smaller and lower still, but somewhere in its husky depths a tiny chuckle lurked. "You know" it reminded him unkindly, "I'm not your 'sweet, unspoiled old-fashioned girl'."

Recklessly Jerry laughed. "My sweet, unspoiled old-fashioned girl! Pooh!" And at the heretical sound a pale and timid ghost—the ghost of discarded dreams—drifted sadly out the window.

"You're all I ever dreamed of," he whispered to the bowed brown head that nestled on his shoulder. And, strangely enough, he believed it.

Giants Again Wallop Phillies, This Time by 13-8 Count

TERRY BLASTS SIXTH HOMER; BRAVES TAKE FOURTH FROM ROBINS

Errors Enable Cards To Thump Pittsburgh; Detroit Routs Indians.

By The Associated Press

The critics who claimed the New York Giants couldn't possibly be as bad as they looked in dropping five of their first six games have been well borne out by the manner in which the McGrawmen have ripped into the Phillies the last three days.

The Giants have begun to display the form that featured their exhibition games and established them among the favorites in the National league race. The three straight victories over the Phils, have been featured by vicious slugging.

Bill Terry has had a big part in the uprising. In the last four days the big first baseman has clubbed six home runs, tying the major league record for circuit blows over that period, and has led his mates in driving in runs. He got No. 6 yesterday to help down the Phil's 13 to 8 in a hitting bee.

The Boston Braves took a firmer grip of first place, winning their fourth straight when Bobby Brown, Rookie righthander, made his major league debut by setting Brooklyn down 4 to 1, on five hits.

Thanks largely to four errors by their opponents, the St. Louis Cardinals broke a six-game losing streak with a 5 to 3 win over Pittsburgh in 10 innings. Lloyd Waner's muff of Bottomley's short fly provided the champions with the winning run in the extra frame.

Rogers Hornsby's Chicago Cubs strengthened their grip on second place with their second straight over the slipping Reds, 5 to 4.

Whitlow, Wyatt, Detroit's sensational rookie, scored his third victory in as many starts as the Tigers rolled up a 16 to 3 decision over the Cleveland Indians. Five Indian flingers gave up 22 hits.

Sam Gray was called upon to quell a ninth inning rally and give the St. Louis Brow a 4 to 1 win over Chicago's White Sox.

Four other American league clubs were not scheduled.

58 SCHOOLS CLASH IN KANSAS RELAYS

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 23—The tenth annual Kansas relays here today attracted an imposing array of track and field stars seeking new records as well as recognition for the coming Olympic games.

Fifty-eight universities and colleges in 14 state contributed the contenders, who faced a program of 12 relay events and nine special individual numbers. Starters in this first of the major out-door relay meetings of the season, included several athletes rated as possible nominees for the United States Olympic team.

GETS GOOD START

BILL TERRY

Bill Terry, above, slugging New York Giant infielder, is out to smash a lot of hitting records this season and incidentally win back the National league batting crown which he lost to "Chick" Hafey of St. Louis last year.

Terry is leading the circuit at this early stage with a percentage mark of .426 and besides that he has walloped out six home runs in the last four games to lead both leagues in this department. Everything considered Terry has a pretty fair start for the year.

800 OHIO ATHLETES COMPETE IN RELAYS

Two Score Schools in Track and Field Meet at Mansfield.

Special to The Star

MANSFIELD, O., April 23—More than 800 school-boy athletes from the four corners of Ohio converged here today to participate in the running of the fifth annual Mansfield High school relays. Two score institutions were represented in the preliminary events.

While this is the fifth edition of the carnival, only two schools have won first honors, Mansfield taking the crown the first three years and Salem in 1931. Both former winners are represented by well-balanced squads today.

Led by a potential Olympic team member, Jesse Owens, Cleveland East Tech is rated as one of the strongest contenders to break the monopoly held by the home school and Salem.

Activities started with a rush at 10 o'clock when elimination trials were conducted in punctiliously all of the track events and in the majority of field feats.

George Simpson, former Ohio State dash star, will run against a picked field in an effort to lower the present world's mark for the century.

NAISMITH OPPOSES CAGE RULE CHANGES

Inventor of Basketball Voices Disapproval of Rule To Curb Stalling.

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 23—Dr. James Naismith, father of basketball, protests vehemently that coaches have foisted upon the national rules committee an undesirable and futile measure to remove the "stall" from the game he invented more than 40 years ago.

Dr. Naismith voiced his disapproval of the new basketball rules between halves of a game here last night between alumni and varsity of the University of Kansas at a demonstration seminar.

He disagreed sharply with Dr. F. C. Allen, Kansas university athletic director, and nationally known basketball coach. Dr. Naismith, professor of physical education at the university, contended the rule forcing the team in possession of the ball into its offensive half of the court after 10 seconds in the back court, only "clutters up the game."

Dr. Naismith told fans and coaches assembled here for the Kansas relays that the burden of aggression should rest upon the team not in possession of the ball. He would give the team not in possession 30 seconds to "go after the ball wherever the other team holds it."

DERBY CANDIDATES IN ACTION TODAY

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 23—Kentucky Derby candidates are slated to display their wares in three races today at Lexington. All three events are over the futurity course.

In the first race, a claiming contest, Flying Boy, John L. Connolly's hopeful for the $50,000 event, is scheduled to match speed with 10 other thoroughbreds in the three-year-old and upward class.

Three Derby nominees, Hoops, Heavy Sugar and Sereum, are entered in the Shandon farm, third event on the program.

In the seventh race, the Kilbourn, the Derby contingent is represented by Tweeny, I Pure, Easy, and Snow King.

Strength of Steam Shovel Company Team Uncertain

Note: This is the twelfth of a series of stories concerning the prospects of the various softball teams in the city for the coming season.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

If someone were to ask H. L. Rogers, pilot of the Marion Steam Shovel company softball team, where his charges were likely to finish this season in the Industrial softball league the answer would probably be an emphatic "I don't know!" Rogers is in charge of the team for the first time this season and has not seen his squad in action.

The Shovel nine encountered some rough going last season but weathered the storm in good enough style to drive through to fourth place in the final standings with a record of seven games won and six lost. Rogers has, with one exception, all of the 1931 talent back on the squad roster but despite this, the team is likely to Practice Monday.

The C, D & M softball nine, champions of the Industrial league last season, will meet the Erie Traffic club of the Commercial circuit Monday in a practice encounter. The game is slated for 6:15 p. m. at Lincoln park.

GETS NEW POST

Frederick (Fritz) Mackey, line coach at Ohio Wesleyan university for the last five years, has been named head football coach at Butler university in Indianapolis to succeed Harry M. Bell. Bell resigned.

Mackey is well known in Marion, having been a former member of Galion High school athletic teams. He has played semi-pro baseball in Marion many times in the past.

VINES AND ALLISON BATTLE IN TOURNEY

Latter Favored To Beat the Champ in Mason and Dixon Finals.

By The Associated Press

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 23—For the third time in two weeks, Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, today found Wilmer Allison blocking his path to a major tournament title.

Beaten by the blonde Texan in two tournaments, Vines hopes to turn the tables in the title round of the annual Mason and Dixon tournament. Allison, however, was the favorite.

As a matter of fact it becomes more and more difficult to see how Allison is going to be kept from playing Davis cup singles. Vines and Shields originally were slated for that duty with Allison and Van Ryn playing doubles.

Allison gave Shields only five games in winning, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. Vines, although he won in straight sets from Dr. Eugene McCauliff, was forced to one deuce set at 8-6, 6-4, 6-4.

LA BARBA TOPS LIST IN FIGHT TOURNEY

Former Flyweight Champ Is Seeking Crown Vacated by Bat Battalino.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., April 23—Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, heads the list of semi finalists in Scotty Monteith's elimination tournament to select a successor to Bat Battalino on the featherweight throne.

The Los Angeles favorite won the right to enter next week's semi-finals by gaining an unpopular decision over Petey Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., southern featherweight champion, in a close fight last night.

Other survivors are Johnny Pena of New York, who defeated Martin Zuniga of Los Angeles, easily, in the other 10-round bout last night, and Frankie Wallace of Cleveland and Tommy Paul of Buffalo, winners of previous bouts.

The four will be matched by lot for the semi-final card, the date for which had not been determined definitely.

Calls First Practice.

H. R. Rogers, new manager of the Marion Steam Shovel company softball team has called the initial workout of the season for next Tuesday. The drill is slated for the Shovel athletic field at 6 p. m. and all prospective players are urged to be on hand.

BLUES GRAB HIGHEST POST IN ASSOCIATION BY DROPPING INDIANS

Tribe Bows to Kaws, 7-2; Columbus Moves Up by Beating Saints.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 23—Dutch Zwilling and the Kansas City Blues, appear to have picked up right where they left off in the American Association last year.

Zwilling tore his club to pieces mid-season last year, and when the campaign was over, had not fit capable of holding its own in anything in the league.

Kansas City finished second.

The Blues today were in first place, following a 7 to 2 victory over Indianapolis yesterday and were in Louisville to open a series with the Colonels.

Louisville which won its first six games yesterday took its first straight beating, losing to Milwaukee, 5 to 2. Ken Penner pitched good ball for the Colonels, allowing eight hits, and contributed a single and two singles to the attack as the Brewers caught him for a fourth for four runs, enough to win.

After a wobbly first inning in which he was fristed for three runs, Sheriff Fred Blake settled down and pitched Columbus to an 8 to 3 victory over St. Paul. Pat Todt connected for a homer and two on in the first, but after that Blake was completely in charge of the situation.

Toledo made seven errors but managed to defeat Minneapolis 8 to 7, to make it two out of three in the series. The Mud Hens accomplished the winning run in the ninth, when Bill Sweeney doubled with Ward on base.

The improvement noted was less than had been anticipated.

Some agitation was a little more cheerful as the close of the week approached as a result of the ratification by Washington of the tax measure. Senate committee will be devoted exclusively to the tax bill through a discussion of some broad questions affecting business.

Steel operations in the Youngstown area were increased as likely to reach a per cent of capacity next week compared to 26 per cent this week presumably reflecting further belated buying by the automobile makers.

HALF TAX MUST BE PAID BEFORE MAY 1

After That Date Penalty of 50 Per Cent Will Go on Listings

Any person who has listed his other personal property with the auditor for taxation may pay the first half of the tax without penalty any time before May 1 it was definitely announced today by Auditor Earl F Thomas

All payments made after April 30 will be penalized 50 per cent he said No personal tax return will be considered filed unless the first half of the taxes has been paid by that date he explained

Approximately 50 persons who have filed listings of their personal property have not paid their first half taxes

The total personal property tax collections to date amount to $2 "67 15 County Treasurer F G Smallwood said This figure includes taxes on both tangible and intangible property The final total of real estate taxes taken during the December collection period was $ 1898

RAIN REPORTS CAUSE SLUMP

General Relief from Drouth Conditions Bring Downward Trend.

CHICAGO April 23—With rains giving fairly general relief in drouth sections of the domestic winter wheat territory and with security weather gains prices underwent a sharp setbacks today Corn and oats did the sessions previous bottom price records Opening values down wheat later held near the initial range Corn started ½@¾ off and subsequently rallied a little

Interest of wheat traders centered mainly on rains shown southwest wet and northwest all the way from the Gulf of Mexico upward into Canada and reached east to the Mississippi river bearish effects too were emphasized by prospects of more moisture Likelihood however that sentiment would become one sided and the market fall into an oversale condition led to rallies at times

Projects that $100 000 000 of Reconstruction Finance corporation funds be used to promote credit sales of United States wheat and cotton abroad failed apparently to act as much of a counterbalance to bearish developments One of the largest grain commission houses issued a statement saying experience of the United States with European debtors justified belief that any such disposition of farm board wheat was in effect a charitable gift placing additional burden on America with millions of citizens in this country unemployed and underfed Some buying of wheat resulted from Missouri and Illinois reports that more advanced fields were taking on a somewhat poorer appearance with a thinning out of the stand Corn and oats followed wheat

Provisions fell about steady influenced by hog values

MASON FOR 60 YEARS TO BE GIVEN HONOR

Adam Cromer of 207 Lincoln avenue, this city, will be the honor guest when Hiram Lodge, No. 18, F. and A. M. in Delaware entertains Tuesday night, April 26, in celebration of his sixtieth anniversary as a member of the organization. He will be presented a Masonic apron at this time. A number of members of Marion Lodge plan to attend the celebration.

Mr. Cromer is also a member of Sidney Moore council No. 84, R. and S. M. of Delaware and Marion Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar, of Marion, being a member of the latter for nearly half a century.

Although a native of Marion county Mr. Cromer spent most of his early life in Delaware. He is a veteran railroad man, and was in the employ of the Western Union and Big Four Railroad companies as a telegraph operator. He worked as an operator at Lewis Center, Galion, Crestline, Delaware and in the office of the general superintendent in Cleveland. He followed railroading for 48 years.

Following his retirement Mr. Cromer took a tour around the world in 1908, spending a great deal of time in Honolulu, Australia, and the Holy Land. He returned home on New Year's day 1912. Mr. Cromer has made his home in Marion for the last three years, coming here from California.

Mr. Cromer is the last of a family of 12 children born to John and Louisa Cromer, natives of Germany who settled on a farm two miles south of Chatfield on the Delaware pike. His father was granted the last tract of land in this section by the government. On Nov. 3, last year Mr. Cromer celebrated his eighty second birthday anniversary.

Grade School Students in Declamatory Contest

Pupils from Kirkpatrick, Meeker and Green Camp Take First Places; Get Gold Medals; Winners of Second Prizes Awarded Silver Medals.

Barbara Brooks of Kirkpatrick, representing group one, Ruth Ella Neville of Meeker representing group two and Loma Osterle of Green Camp representing group three, won first honors in the finals of the annual declamatory contest for elementary schools of the county at the Central Junior High school last night.

Second honors went to Norman Weston of Green Camp, representing group one, Betty Bricker of Green Camp representing group two, and Walter McClusky of Pleasant township, representing group three. The contest was in charge of County School Superintendent C. B. Rayburn. Miss Allee Daugherty of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, was judge.

For the purpose of the contest the schools of the county were divided into three groups, group one including pupils of the first and second grades, group two, pupils of the third, fourth and fifth, and group three, pupils of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

Selections which won honors for the first prize winners were: "Mud Pies" by Barbara Brooks; "Little Orphan Annie" by Ruth Ella Neville; "The House by the Side of the Road" by Loma Osterle. The following selections were given by second prize winners: "So Was I" by Norman Weston; "The Ragged Man" by Betty Bricker and "A Message to Garcia" by Walter McClusky.

Gold medals were given the winners of first honors and silver medals to those awarded second honors while ribbons were given to the school represented by the winners.

A pleasing feature of the program was the musical numbers by a combined orchestra from the Caledonia, Kirkpatrick and Martel schools, under the direction of William A. Tritchler. Three numbers were played by the orchestra. A cornet solo was played by Robert Hoffstetter of Martel.

Others who took part in the contest were J. Lewis Hafer of LaRue.

Heat of Barn Fire Forces Cars To Detour at Forest

Special to The Star

FOREST, April 23—Traffic on the Lincoln highway north of here was detoured several hours yesterday afternoon when fire, started by children playing with matches, destroyed a large bank barn on the N. E. Wright farm.

Wright was unable to place an estimate on the damage but it is expected that the loss will be more than $12,000. A clover huller, a threshing machine, $1,000 worth of grain and hay and farm machinery were destroyed. A tractor was saved.

Automobiles were forced to take a detour past the Wright farm when the heat became so great that it endangered traffic on both sides of the road. The fire and spread to a hay field a half mile from the barn.

Neighbors fought the blaze all night to prevent its spread to other buildings were damaged. A litter of pigs was the only stock killed.

Men working in a field discovered the blaze. Members of the family said that their children had been playing with matches in the barn. The loss is only partly covered by insurance.

DEADLINE NEARS IN FARM SEED LOANS

Applications Must Be in Washington by April 30; Response Slow.

All applications for seed loans must be in the hands of the loan committees in Washington, D. C., by April 30, it was announced today by James A. Deal, special representative of the department of agriculture.

Applications should be in the hands of the county committee not later than April 28 to allow time to forward them to Washington, Deal said.

Although no definite figures on the number and size of loans issued in this county are no available, Deal stated that Marion and Crawford county have been slow to take advantage of the seed loans, as compared with other Ohio counties.

A number of loans have been passed on and applications for others are pending. The loans are made at an interest rate of five and a half per cent, with crops maturing this summer being given as security for loans. Loans are limited to $400 to an individual.

Dana Funeral Sunday.

PROSPECT, April 23—Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Dana, wife of Dr. H. E. Dana of Hartman the Hudson, N. Y., will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the Lutheran church with Rev. Paul Doenstein officiating. Burial will be in the Prospect cemetery.

Until funeral time the body will be at the home of her sister Mrs. Eva Wattring.

Said Mrs. Jones to Mrs. Martin

"I want you to see my new electric refrigerator. It works so perfectly and it is easy to be seen that I am going to save its cost in a short time."

A few years ago electric refrigeration was in the realm of dreams. Now it is a reality. Each day brings new applications of electricity to either the home, industry or public life. An industry with such remarkable features can only go but forward.

NAMES CAPONE IN KIDNAP CASE

Sen. Bingham Suspects Reported Offer of Gangster Made by Friends

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON April 23 Senator Bingham Republican of Connecticut said in the senate that the fact that Al Capone has twice offered to find the kidnaped Lindbergh baby if released from custody lends support to the belief that it had been done by friends of Capone for this very purpose

The senator said that color also was lent to this belief by the fact that it has been necessary to turn to gangsters for aid in recovering the child

Bingham described Capone as a gangster leader who made his money out of beer rackets and hoo leegging He said however he did not believe the Lindbergh kidnaping was entirely due to prohibition but added he felt congress must face the fact that the dry laws have made enormous profits available to gangsters and racketeers

He placed in the congressional record a resolution adopted by the Los Angeles aviators post of the American Legion which blames the prohibition laws for the gangster activities which it believes responsible for the crime

Senator Bingham described as astonishing the statement in the morning papers that Capone has again offered to aid in finding the Lindbergh child

While Senator Bingham was talking in the senate it was arranged to submit Capones petition asking the supreme court to review his conviction to the court on Monday This will enable the court on the following Monday to

Report Offer from Capone Agent

By The Associated Press

NORFOLK Va April 23—The Ledger Dispatch said today that learned from an apparently authentic source that John Hughes Curtis intermediary seeking the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby has refused an offer of $150 000 made by a man who said he was a representative of Al Capone if he would turn the baby over to him to lead him to the place where the baby is held

The story the paper says is that Capones supposed lieutenant was in the city on April 1 He is said to have approached Curtis confidentially with the offer of $150 000 in cash if the Norfolk intermediaries would secure the kidnaped baby and turn it over to his group

The paper added that Curtis is said to have replied that in the event he was successful in his negotiations he would deliver the baby only to his parents. The Capone lieutenants reply to this said the paper was that Curtis either would accept the $150 000 offer or it would be "too bad for him.

EXPLOSION OF LAMP CAUSES DEATH OF 2

Ohioans Perish in Flames as House Burns After Drinking Party.

By The Associated Press

HAMILTON O April 23—Overturning or explosion of a kerosene lamp, was believed today to have started the fire in which two Hamilton youths lost their lives in the destruction of the home of one of them.

The victims were Russell Winkler, 18, and a cousin, Raymond Winkler, 20 Fire broke out in the home of Russell Winkler shortly before midnight By the time firemen reached the scene the blaze was so advanced the building could not be saved.

Belief a lamp started the fire was firmly expressed after police questioned Walter Winkler, father of Russell. Arrested intoxicated near the home shortly after an alarm was given, the elder Winkler said only "What I've done tonight doesn't concern any one but myself." He was unable to say more than that, officers said.

Today, however, he said he was in a nearby pool room when the fire started, leaving the youths some time earlier in the night All had been drinking, he said.

Appellate Judges Uphold 50-Year-Old Contract with Railroad Company

JUDGE KLINGER DISSENTS

Defendant in Injunction Proceedings Expected To Go to Supreme Court

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS O April 23 Bucyrus was victorious today in another step in its legal fight to keep the New York Central railroad shops in operation here

... sustaining a decision ... Judge C ... temporarily restraining the railroad from moving the shops the third district court of appeals at Lima this morning ... after ... hearing the case since last December

The court ruled that the company must fully operate and maintain its shops as the principal repair point on its line between Toledo and Toledo.

Upholds Old Contract

The decision upholds a 50 year old contract between the city and the New York Central lines in which Bucyrus gave the railroad a $50 000 tract of land and built ... Under terms of the contract the railroad would forfeit the property and machinery if the shops were closed

Two years ago the railroad announced plans to move the equipment to Collinwood near Cleveland The shops here were later closed and the city started injunction action to prevent removal of equipment

Late last year a permanent injunction was granted in common pleas court and the shops were reopened The railroad then appealed to the appellate court to have the contract set aside.

Attorneys for the railroad maintained that conditions made it impractical for the company to remove its repair equipment

Klinger Dissents

Holding that the burden of proof rested with the railroad the appellate court said that the company had failed to show the necessity of changing the shops location

Judges Charles T Justice and Phil M Crow prepared the decision Judge William Klinger dissented

City Solicitor Charles F Schaber has represented the city in all the court proceedings

The railroad is expected to have the case heard before the Ohio supreme court

POLICE INVESTIGATE MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Miami Authorities Probe Fatal Shooting of Woman Flier's Fiance.

By The Associated Press

MIAMI Fla April 23—A pillow slip two suicide notes curiosity and the wound that cost the life of Haden Clarke young writer and fiance of Mrs. Jessie M Keith Miller, Australian flier, were studied by authorities today in an attempt to determine whether his death was a suicide or a slaying

Clarke collaborating with Mrs Keith Miller in preparation of her life story was shot in his bed a few hours after Captain W M Lancaster his roommate and the flier's partner for five years heard the plans of Clarke and Mrs Keith-Miller to marry

Mrs Keith Miller and Lancaster, both asserting Clarke shot himself, are in jail held for investigation by order of State Attorney N Vernon Hawthorne

In Hawthorne's office were reports from an ambulance driver and a physician that neither had touched the apparently fresh pillow on Lancaster's bed The latter told Hawthorne one of the two smoothed the pillow after the shooting This was in response to a query as to why the pillow was unrumpled in spite of Lancaster's statement he slept in the bed that night

Two notes apparently left by Clarke were being studied by a hand writing expert in an effort to determine whether they were forged Attaches of the state attorney's office examined correspondence found in the Keith Miller house for a possible motive for Clarke's death

COUNCIL OF 100 PLEDGES SUPPORT TO COMMUNITY FUND

CIVIC GROUP TO AID DRIVE

Members Pledge To Assist In Drive To Carry Agencies for Six Months.

ISALY READS REPORT

Recommendations for Conduct of Campaign Made by Committee.

The Council of 100 definitely placed its shoulder to the Community Fund wheel last night by pledging each of its members to actively support the spring community fund drive to be conducted jointly to finance the agencies until next fall.

Fifteen men definitely volunteered to devote a part of their time to the fund drive, and the council as a whole voted decisively that its entire membership participate in the drive.

This action taken during the monthly session of the council at White Oaks farm last night, followed a report by the council's two co-chairmen on the Community Fund planning committee.

Isaly Reads Report

The report was read by Charles M. Isaly, who with Morgan E. Burke represents the council in the fund committee. Six definite recommendations or findings were reported to the council. The same report, it is understood, will be made to the general committee of the Community fund in the near future.

That the fund drive this year be known as the "continuation fund drive" is the first recommendation. Second, it is recommended that a definite organization be formed to carry on the drive in a well planned campaign. Steps to form this organization are being taken.

The card system, permitting campaign workers to select their own prospects instead of working certain areas, was recommended in preference to the block plan used here in former years. It was further recommended that no help outside the city be obtained to conduct the continuation fund drive, and that the offer of the Marion chamber of commerce to help be accepted. The chamber probably will be asked to help set up the campaign and probably will be the central point for the drive.

Although it did not investigate the merits of the various participating agencies the fund committee definitely recommended that all agencies be retained, "Each agency has its host of friends and supporters," Mr. Isaly said.

The last recommendation pointed to the need for a larger number of persons to have become actively interested in the fund, "It's a job in which all, and not a few, should help," Isaly declared.

The council's action to offer its members as active workers was taken in response to the recommendations.

Dr. Sawyer Reports

Activities of the welfare clearing house, now 20 days old, were reported by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, who has set up the clearing house at his own expense and who will operate it until it is well enough established to perpetuate itself.

The clearing house has received 4,508 reports from the various public, semi-private and private welfare agencies, he said. These reports list aid given 626 families. A file has been made for each family, and an accurate record of the assistance given each family is maintained. This is checked to avoid duplication of effort in welfare activity. The city made 3,827 reports to the clearing house since April 2.

The clearing house reports are tabulated and the trend of welfare work here is shown on graphs. Each family given aid is marked on a large map of the city.

Reporting on the results of balloting at the last meeting of the council, Dr. Sawyer said that a majority of members of the council favored varied types of monthly meetings. Some will be open to the public, and others will be in the form of discussion meetings for council members only.

Rush Committees

Organization of the council committees, the working units of the council, was hastened last night when Dr. Sawyer gave to each committee chairman a record book and instructions for committee activities. Each committee has been asked to elect a vice chairman and a secretary, and to keep minutes of regular meetings.

The committees will wrestle with problems brought out in the civic questionnaire taken last year by Dr. Sawyer, and will act on other matters brought to its attention. All committee plans will be subject to the approval of the entire council.

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 23—The Lindbergh kidnaping mystery, now 53 days old, continued today to baffle attempts at solution.

The highlights of the past 24 hours was a high official's statement that Al Capone had offered a flat guarantee to effect Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.'s return in a few days if he were released temporarily from the prison cell he occupies in Chicago. The gangster chief denied making the offer.

The same high official said he believed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh personally had re-established contact with persons who mulcted him of a $50,000 ransom payment recently and then ran out on their promise to return the kidnaped child.

Two Norfolk men trying to deal with the kidnapers returned to their homes from secret missions after a colleague, the Rev. H. Dobson-Pencock, had said yesterday that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had renewed his request for the three to continue their work. On their return, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage and John H. Curtis, the two intermediaries, refused to say where they had been or what success they had.

Two of the bills with which the ransom was paid turned up in Hyannis, dispatches from there said.

WALL ST. POOL SYSTEM BARED

Testimony Today Results in Calls for Raskob, Durant and Others.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 23—Because of testimony given today by the senate banking committee that they have engaged in pool operations on the stock exchange, John J. Raskob, W. C. Durant, W. F. Kenny and Fred J. Fisher are to be called for questioning by the investigation under way.

Thomas E. Bragg and Bernard E. Smith, Wall street operators called "bear raiders" by William A. Gray, counsel for the inquiry named Raskob and the others as having participated in pool dealings with them.

Percy A. Rockefeller, who testified yesterday, also was named along with M. J. Meehan, for whom a subpoena is out.

Raskob, the chairman of the Democratic national committee, was mentioned as belonging to a pool in Anaconda copper that was brought together early in 1929 and broken up six months later.

Smith and Bragg promised the senate committee to produce records of their dealings.

Tells of $400,000 Loss

Bragg said he lost $400,000 in the pool. Others in the pool he said were Percy A. Rockefeller and Fred F. Fisher, but he could not recall other names.

M. J. Knight, an expert accountant said pools were organized for various purposes. Asked how a pool operates to advance prices, he explained:

"It is necessary first to make a survey of the stock. The aid of a specialist on the floor is necessary. The stock is acquired slowly and quietly as possible. Sometimes trouble develops.

How They Operate

"It is necessary occasionally to depress the price to go down and catch the stop loss orders. Then the drive goes on. There is always a bid in for the stock. When they find there aren't many orders on the specialist's book then the price is boosted. After a certain rise, they begin to unload, not waiting for the peak.

"More skill is needed on the up side than down. It is easier to depress a price than to raise it."

The aid of a specialist is not necessary in a "bear raid," Knight said, because the selling begins liquidation and makes it easy for the manipulators to gain their objective.

Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan asked Knight if he knew the names of any specialists. He couldn't recall any. Couzens said "I would like to question some of them."

Names Meehan

"Who was the specialist in the radio pool of 1929?" asked Senator Barkley, Democrat of Kentucky.

"M. J. Meehan," said Knight.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa asked if it was not a "betrayal of the public" for specialists to turn their information over to a pool.

"Yes, because it is of a confidential nature," Knight said.

"The principal business of the exchange is in betraying the public isn't it?" Brookhart asked.

"In a way," Knight replied.

William A. Gray counsel for the senate committee inquired into the radio pool. The stock went over $500, was split 5 to 1, and is now selling for about $5.

LODGE TO OBSERVE 113TH ANNIVERSARY

Odd Fellows Plan Program for Monday Night at I. O. O. F. Hall.

Plans have been completed for the program to be presented in observance of the one hundred and thirteenth anniversary of the founding of Odd Fellowship Monday night in Kosciusko lodge hall on north Main street. The program will be given at 8 p. m. and will be open to Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, their families and friends. A short session of lodge will be held at 7 p. m.

Rev. C. V. Roop, pastor of the First United Brethren church, will deliver an address on Odd Fellowship. The program will open with a song, "America," followed by the invocation by Dr. G. E. Turley. Robert Dellinger will entertain with a group of piano numbers and the men's chorus of the First United Brethren church will contribute several vocal selections. Music will include selections by the I. O. O. F. band and Bernard Brooks will give a reading. Selections by the men's chorus and the benediction by Rev. Paul Bourquin, pastor of Salem Evangelical church, will complete the program.

The speaker of the evening will be introduced by Grand Patriarch Ralph G. Williamson.

24 ATTEND MEETING OF CIRCLE NO. 4

Mrs. Faye Greene was a guest of Circle No. 4 of the Ladies' Aid society of Epworth M. E. church at a meeting of 24 members Thursday afternoon at the church. Mrs. G. W. Blank conducted the devotions. Following a business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. F. K. Holmes gave several readings and later won first honors in a contest. Mrs. Mildred Hunter was chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting, assisted by Mrs. Charles Brady, Mrs. H. K. Brown, Mrs. G. W. Sweetland and Mrs. Jennie Austin. Mrs. W. Don Davis will be chairman of the committee for a meeting May 19. The place will be announced later.

Found Not Guilty.

John Carroza, arrested by the police March 21, in a raid on a Smith residence, on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, was found not guilty by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin yesterday afternoon and the charge was dismissed. The court held that the fact that a key to the place and receipts showing where he had on several occasions paid the rent, were found in his possession, did not necessarily mean that he was part owner of the liquor found in the place.

REPORTS MISHAP

C. C. Smith of 426 Girard avenue reported to the police last night that his wife while driving on west Center street late in the afternoon had struck a small girl who ran out from the curb into the path of her machine. Neither the child's name or the extent of her injuries could be learned today.

PLANE CRASH VICTIM DISCOVERED IN RIVER

mained on her body was torn to shreds.

Pilot George was believed to have become lost in a storm which swept Ohio on March 21, and was thought to have been seeking a landing place when his plane crashed. His body, with the parachute wrapped around it was found in the wreckage.

Dr. Cole was believed to have jumped clear of the ship.

Countryside Searched

The hilly countryside around Steubenville, both on the Ohio and West Virginia side of the river, was scoured for her. However, when wreckage of the plane was brought to the surface, her hat and other articles of clothing were found.

The wrecked ship was located in 20 feet of water by scout planes sent out from Pittsburgh and Columbus.

Mail which George carried and parts of the demolished plane were taken from the stream about 12 hours after the accident. Authorities continued to drag the Ohio today in the hope that other parts of the ship, especially the motor, would be found.

Dr. Cole's brother, Dr. Charles Skinner of Kansas City, was notified of the finding of the body and said he would leave for Steubenville immediately.

FOREST LAWN P.-T. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

Prosecuting Attorney Addresses Group on Criminal Law.

Officers of the Forest Lawn Parent-Teacher association were elected at a program meeting last night at the school that included a talk by Prosecuting Attorney Russell M. Wilhelm. Mr. Wilhelm spoke on the laws of Ohio keeping pace with crime.

Elected to serve in the coming year were Ed. Glimpse, president; Mrs. A. D. Imbody, first vice president; Miss Emma Lucier, second vice president; Miss R. M. Sowden, secretary, and Mrs. John Abbott, treasurer. They will be installed at the May meeting.

Rev. G. G. Canfield of the First Church of the Brethren opened the meeting with devotions following community singing. A chorus composed of Misses Charlotta Courtney, Bernita LaMasters, Virginia Fowler, Martha Weaver, Norma Parker, Catherine Kraft and Hayley Ann Nippert, and directed by Mrs. B. L. Wallace, sang two numbers. Miss LeMasters and Miss Courtney sang several solos, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Wallace. Pauline Parish gave two readings.

The association voted $1 to the fund to provide garden seed for the unemployed and $1 to the George Washington bicentennial Marion county committee. Plans were made for a picnic to be held some time before the close of school.

FIRE LOSS $25 AT APARTMENT HOUSE

Damage estimated at $25 resulted from a fire which late yesterday destroyed the lattice work beneath a rear porch at the Peter Pan apartment house on Blaine avenue. The blaze was put out by firemen from the central station who responded to a call sent in by occupants of the apartments when they discovered the blaze.

It is believed a match or cigaret stub tossed into rubbish piled near the porch, was responsible for the fire.

86 Harding Students in High School Eisteddfod

Local Musicians Take Third Place in Contest; Findlay Is First and Kenton Second; Marion Pupils Take Four Firsts.

Harding High school's voice groups and soloists won four first prizes, two second prizes, and tied with the Findlay High school for first prize in the mixed chorus contest at the annual voice eisteddfod held yesterday at Findlay.

Eighty-six boys and girls from Harding High school competed with Findlay, Fostoria and Kenton schools. T. R. Evans, supervisor of music in the schools, accompanied the group and conducted the chorus numbers.

Marion's first prizes were won in the baritone solo, piano solo, tenor solo and alto solo events. Those winning the contests were: Fred Hoch, baritone solo, "Tally Ho" by Leoni; Kathryn Schneider, piano solo, "Waltz" by Chopin; George Winget, tenor solo, "She Never Told Her Love" by Hayun, and Henrietta Bird, alto solo, "In the Luxembourg Gardens" by Manning.

The mixed choruses of Harding and Findlay High schools tied for first place in the two a cappella numbers, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul" by Ipolitof-Ivanoff and "O Peaceful Night."

Betty Annen won second place in the soprano solo, "God Touched the Rose" by Brown and the Boys' Glee club lost to the Findlay club by one point in rendition of "Yachting Glee" by Culbertson.

Marion's total score for the afternoon and night was 365.918 placing Harding High school third in the eisteddfod. Findlay was first with a total of 376.715 points and Kenton was second with 367.629 points.

The Girls' Glee club of Harding High school was fourth with its rendition of "TheSnow" by Elgar. Findlay won the event. Marion also placed fourth in the boys' quartet, bass solo and girls' duet events.

Paul V. Barrett was conductor of the eisteddfod.

James Jones of Van Wert and Merrill C. McEwen of Bowling Green acted as adjudicators.

200 MASONS ATTEND SPECIAL PROGRAM

Lodge Observes Washington Bicentennial; Visitors Are Entertained.

More than 200 Masons attended the program commemorating the George Washington bicentennial presented last night in the Masonic temple. The lodgemen joined with thousands of other Masons throughout the state in honoring the first president who also was a Mason. Lodges of Mt. Gilead, Chesterville, Cardington and Caledonia joined with Sojourners and Marion lodges in sponsoring the program.

A half-hour concert by the Masonic orchestra was followed by the opening of the lodge by members of Marion lodge No. 70. Asa Queen presided as master of ceremonies and talks on Washington were given. C. M. Beitler of Cardington gave an address, "Washington, the Statesman," and Fred W. Warner's talk was on "Washington, the Citizen." Songs, popular in Washington's time were sung by the assembly and the program closed with an address, "Washington, the Mason" by Dr. C. E. Turley and a song by the Masonic chorus.

A social hour and lunch were enjoyed in the dining room following the program.

CITY BRIEFS

Tools Stolen — Paper hangers tools valued at $20 and belonging to L. J. Berry of 832 Bennett street, were stolen from 161 Johnson street sometime last night, according to a report made to the police by Berry this morning. The loot included a paper hanger's board and a number of brushes.

Car Stolen—A Buick sedan belonging to Jay H. Maish of King avenue, was stolen from near the postoffice shortly after 9 p. m. yesterday, according to a report made to the police. The car was a 1931 model and carried Ohio license 96-932.

Bicycle Stolen—The theft of his bicycle from near the Marion theater was reported to the police by Charges Griffith of 275 Carhart street, last night.

MARION COUPLE WED 47 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller of 200 Wallace street today are observing their forty-seventh wedding anniversary. The day is being spent quietly and no celebration is being held in honor of the event.

Mrs. Miller is recovering from bruises sustained when she fell down the steps of the basement of her home more than a week ago. She also suffered an injury to her right arm.

ENJOY SCENT OF THE HOMELAND

These ladies of the "Land of the Cherry Blossoms" must have experienced a feeling of nostalgia as they viewed the profusion of cherry blossoms that heralded the warm spring weather in Washington, D. C. They are Japanese Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi, and his wife with their daughter, Taka, (left), pictured as they strolled among the blossom-laden trees around the tidal basin at the capital. The costume of Madame Debuchi and her daughter makes this bit of the United States look like a fragment of Japan.

LOCAL STUDENTS IN WOOSTER CEREMONY

Will Take Part in Color Day Pageant May 14.

Miss Martha McGee of 619 Cherry street and Joseph Roby of 292 south Vine street will take part in the twenty-eighth annual color day pageant at Wooster college on May 14. Miss Elena Sage of Girard avenue will be crowned May queen by Miss Carolyn Gustafson of Lakewood, the 1931 queen.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover will be a guest of honor at Wooster on that day and the degree of litteras humanorius doctor will be conferred upon her by the college.

The color day events include the staging of a play, "The Queen's Husband," a baseball game with Ashland college, a track meet with Oberlin and a cast of nearly 300 students who will stage "The Pageant in Pattern, which depicts Goethe's theory of the art of poetry.

PLANT CEDAR TREE AT GRADE SCHOOL

Ceremony Marks Event at Washington Building.

A cedar tree from Ferry farm on the Rappahannock river, boyhood home of George Washington, was planted yesterday afternoon by the children of the George Washington school.

Appropriate ceremonies marked the tree planting. The tree was purchased by the children and teachers through the George Washington Tree Guild of Fredericksburg, Va.

Miss Linda Willauer, principal, led the ceremony, which took place at 2 p. m. The tree was planted in the front grounds of the school. The first grade gave an appropriate recitation after which Betty Beck recited Joyce Kilmer's poem, "Trees." The entire school joined in singing "America the Beautiful."

WOMAN HELD FOR FEDERAL OFFICERS

Deputies of the sheriff's office yesterday arrested Mrs. Garnet Robinson for immigration officer Frank Dugan of Cincinnati.

She was apprehended at Meeker, where she had been staying a short time. She came to this county from Detroit, after crossing over from Canada two years ago.

Mrs. Robinson was placed in the county jail to await preparation of passports. She will be sent to Canada.

CENTRAL JUNIOR P.-T. A. TO ELECT

Election of officers will be held at the meeting of Central Junior High Parent-Teacher association Monday night at the school building. The program will include music by the boys' and girls' glee clubs and the school orchestra.

Members of the Girl Reserves also will take part in the program and a short address will be given by Clyde C. Caldwell, president of the George Washington Parent-Teacher group.

To Hold Tryouts.

Soloist tryouts for the Marion Lecture-Recital club will be heard Monday at 7 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church. Candidates have been asked to notify Mrs. T. R. Evans of 255 Edgewood drive. Those who do not try out Monday night, probably will not be included in the club program for 1932-33.

Hollywood's Openings Not So Popular, Will Says; "Big Shots" Seldom Attend

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL sir, I knew it was just what I read in the papers and what I hear as I listen in on a radio that he was going to move here I never was much of a radio hound I get on Amos and Andy and then wait for the program me up but this one is right here on the ground Hollywood is having one of its Openings this is one of those things where there is a new movie opening at some Theatre

Well for sameness I don't suppose two airdale pups are any more alike than all Openings They have a telephone exchange in the lobby of the Theatre and an announcer and before you who is coming in He says Here comes Mr Whoozis or Mrs Jesbo we will have 'em step over to the microphone and say a few words to you over the telephone And that's the last you ever hear of it they never come over and say anything and the ones that they do get to come over and say Hello everybody what you see here but its the usual bunch of some one that worked for the company that is putting on the picture Its going to be that every studio almost has its own people to make em go and make up the crowd If the Warner Picture every one there is working for Warner If its Fox it's typical Fox audience Most of em have seen it at Preview but they don't detract the crowds like they would too And most of the companies have done away with em It cost a lot of dough to put one on and after all a picture does or doesn't pass what it deserves

Can't Hide Good Ones

You can open one down a dark alley and not let anyone know about it and if its any good in a few days you can't get near the thing Its like a good restaurant you can't hide it This old boy announcing tonight is having trouble getting anyone to announce that anyone ever heard of He is laying it onto the traffic He says traffic is holding all the big stars back He is tireless though He keeps making you think you are seeing pretty soon

This is a commercial age we have got to hand it to for it values things That is a thankless job that announcer has Poor fellow getting up a soul On yes here is Chick Sales you all know Chick He is a bear on canvas or boards then he had a mighty popular novel out there Chick ought to fit right into an opening Chick you was a lifesaver for this poor announcer

Now we are at a Culver City Nights club I worked at the old Goldwyn studio for three years back in 19 and 20 21 and I never though Culver City would ever have a night club so you can never tell what a town will turn out to be

Would Enjoy It

Speaking of music my wife and Mrs Flo Zeigfeld Chatlie Burkel have gone to hear Padawinski Say try to spell that guys name Everybody can say it but no one can spell it I wanted to go hear the old gentleman tonight I never in my life heard him Thats almost a crime for he must be the greatest ever and a very fine old character I wouldent have known any more what he was doing than a prairie dog but I bet I would have enjoyed a lot of it at that I have stayed at his hotel in Warsaw in fact occupied his suit there and by the way Floyd Gibbons was there at the hotel with me at the time Thats where I first met him He has had a great time over in China Sure wish I had not had to rush back

But still I am not so hot for that actual war stuff I just want to see it no more or less what tribes of people are fighting and it funny how that war stopped right out of sight the minute Baby ruined that war for Brits sake

And next to this sure is what was a horse but Australian horse Did you ever see an exhibition of interested in an animal I am at ting here now in my own ... kills at a wonderful ... of ... given to me by the ... a writer that come over with ... He told me that he called it to Australia from fifteen hundred to two thousand words a minute I have up every day That was all during the time that he was being prepared for the race All the while he was ... Just think of it ... Cuba And the interest that it put into them Now imagine how they must feel

I was in Austria years many years ago and I have always maintained that they had the best horses in the world I was

That not only a sport with them its a mania When the Big race the Melbourne ... is run every man woman and child in the land has some kind of a bet on it This horse I like to tell for it He won it I think a couple of times and we will have kept on winning it but the ... Mussolini put the grandstand down in he was a very big powerful ... its total distance was two and a half miles We havent got a thing that will have finished in the street with him over that distance It against that little group that ... chairman Jockey Gracie and my friend Wolfe the picture went going back all that long trip after a horse after all I guess is just about next to a human Him and the old Dog

WITH EDNA S DUTTON

"CHILDREN OF PLEASURE" by Larry Barretto furnishes some lively and entertaining reading and some readers might even go so far as to point out a moral in the story of one Linda Gault who tasted of luxury and then lost it all The stock market crash of 29 is responsible

Linda Gault was the daughter of parents who prided themselves on being gentlefolk even though they were in reduced circumstances Only the family knew of the wretchedness of her poverty and the struggle to keep up appearances even though there was no coal in the bin and the family purse was well nigh depleted

The family's salvation from a financial standpoint was Linda's marriage to wealth It was a bitter disappointment when Linda chose for a husband a man of good family but far from wealthy At this point in the story Linda takes the reins and with a hard hand she proceeds to drive her husband until they amass a fortune while they both are quite young

The story opens in October 1929 with Linda in her beautiful and fashionable house trying to worm a last stock market tip out of a former admirer The fortune fades and Linda and her friends follow their usual round of life and gaiety refusing to believe that the blow could possibly fall

The author gathers into the picture not only Linda her husband and their friends but also their servants and their friends depicting them floating along on clouds of prosperity

Adversary of the Lord

A SERMONETTE

BY S. F. PORTER
Pastor Emmanuel Baptist Church

TO speak the truth is not always easy, but it always produces good results. Hear the word of the Lord, Hear the words and take heed to how things God accepts his true worship. Although, the great creator of man could do what he will now exercise His power has made it necessary, that is now making man to commit an unspeakable abominations. Why I should be the one to broach this I can not understand. But this one thing is sure, that God will not hold a people sin, guilty of nation abhorrent practices that indulges in such wicked practices. Think, can you mention one institution founded by God that has not been corrupted by the selfish ambitions of men? I must confess that I can not. Every institution ever become besieged with the deceitful works of iniquity. Oh that you drafters would realize your end "What will it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his own soul?" There is no justification for the thief, apart from repentance.

How many are guilty of perjury? Will God forget? When did the lie prevail 'gainst the truth at the throne of God? God looks down on this land today and cries, "You are a rebellious house, even equal to my servant Israel." Your streets are stained with blood Your mouths are filled with cursings and threats. Your roads are blighted with adultery and death. Murder, fornication and suicide are well known and often entertained

These are abominable in the eyes of God, but yet it seems that the adversary is not content, but advance before the footlights of public prominence. There, before the eyes of God and man, carrying the seal of the approval of many a business firm, he tears the sacred institution of marriage from its high and holy position and presents it as an advertising show. The human uncircumcisables of the adversary of the Lord are used by him to degrade the holy institution of marriage, because of their selfish greed for filthy lucre. Dear reader, Do you understand that these things are abominable? My dear merchants, Don't you realize that you commit a terrible sin before God, when you encourage poor young couples to get married by your abominable advertising schemes, by offering them furniture, clothing and a honeymoon? Are you so blinded, that it is necessary for a minister of the gospel to publicly denounce your wicked practices? Will you stop serving the adversary of the Lord, or will you suffer eternal damnation as one of his co-laborers? Parents, young men and women take heed, beware of this abominable practice, for God will surely judge such diabolical wickedness. Therefore, I the servant of the Lord do now warn you that except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish.

These things are not easy to write, my friends, but you know they truly are necessary Why should any man perish without warning? God calls men to preach the truth and urges sinners to accept it

4 MEETINGS LISTED FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Marion Workers To Attend Session in Tiffin May 24, 25.

Four regional conventions for Sunday school workers and religious educators will be held over the state in the month of May. Marion workers and educators have been invited to attend the conventions at Tiffin on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 24-25. Sidney, Ravenna and Marietta are the other convention cities.

Arthur T. Arnold of Columbus, general secretary of the Ohio Council of Religious Education, which is sponsoring the meetings, stopped in Marion a short time this week, and outlined the program which will be offered for the two days.

All Sunday schools are entitled to send delegates, who will be given lodging and breakfast without charge.

"Christian Education for Personal and Social Salvation" is the convention theme. Prof. H. Augustine Smith of Boston, Roy A. Burkhart of Chicago and Miss Hazel A. Lewis of St. Louis will be present in all conventions.

Among the questions to be discussed are: "What the church school should do to help solve the problem of world peace and what the church should do to help solve the problem of interracial good will.

Spiritual Regeneration Theme of Church Lecture

The importance of spiritual regeneration of the human consciousness, the healing of the sick by divine mind and the annihilation of the human will for God's will were stressed by Richard J. Davis, C. S. of Chicago, Ill., in a lecture last night at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, on the subject, "Christian Science, Its Influence on Health and Character."

He spoke in part as follows

"The world as a whole or at least the civilized part of it, is becoming increasingly acquainted with the fact that the teachings of Christian Science are healing the physically sick. In the lifting up of the diseased and heavy-laden, the truth of its teaching is being widely demonstrated But it is important to emphasize this fact. Christian Science is not merely a healing cult a system of therapeutics to make mean a bodies well and thereby enable them to 'go sinning in the same old material way. The fundamental purpose of Christian Science is the entire spiritual regeneration of human consciousness It shows that there is an inseparable connection between physical healing and the regeneration of character; the two are absolutely conjoined. And therefore I am going to speak to you on the subject of 'Christian Science Its Influence on Health and Character.'

"In the last fifteen or twenty years, various systems and books have appeared purporting to develop man's hidden powers, to give him personality and the ability to control or dominate situations in which he might happen to be interested But Christian Science has nothing in common with any teaching emphasizing the development of the human will

"Christian Science teaches us how to recognize the subtle activity of the human will in one's character, how to analyze our strong desires for some particular thing or to achieve some special goal, and how to set aside cherished human hopes in order that the will of God may operate unhindered It shows us how to let the will of God be done in our lives It demands that we cease the endless material planning, wishing, and hoping, which never lead in the realization of God's purposes for us It declares that God alone is master of our destiny and brings us only good. If we will put aside self-interest and let the will of God be done, there is no difficulty that may not be happily and properly solved.

"The impulse to dominate and run other people's affairs is the offspring of the human will. In fact, the disposition to tell others what to do, what they ought to do, or what they must do, crops out in the family life of nearly every one. Why is it that some one always wants to be the head of the house, instead of letting God be the head? Why is it that the man or woman who starts out to put the whole house in order usually succeeds in setting the whole family in disorder? We have all heard the expression, "Oh, he has a will and a mind of his own" That is exactly the trouble. What is needed is the will and mind of God. Christian Science frees man from the desire to interfere obtrusively in the lives of others It destroys the impulse to manipulate, either consciously or unconsciously, and impels man to let the will of God govern in the lives of everyone.

"No woman has ever lived who has brought more joy, happiness, and spiritual freedom into the lives of men than Mary Baker Eddy. The leaven of her spiritual teaching is making itself felt in every activity of human endeavor She has given the world the science of Christianity,—wonderful in itself, —but more wonderful still, she proved the principle of this science in practical demonstration and provided definite rules and instruction, spiritual teaching, which, if properly followed, will enable every man, woman and child to enjoy the unlimited blessings of this truth

"Love for God and man was the dominant note of Mrs Eddy's character, and this, she says, must be the motive back of all healing, both physical and mental, in Christian Science.

"May we not well stop and consider to what extent that same love for mankind which Mrs. Eddy manifested is entering our own thinking? Are we thinking of helping mankind as a whole, and does that impulse reflect itself in our daily lives? In her textbook she makes it very clear that true healing can be accomplished only through unselfed love. She indicates that there must be in the thought of those who heal, or who would be healed, tenderness and compassion, patience, and other Christlike qualities

"If the Scientist has enough Christly affection to win his own pardon, and such commendation as the Magdalen gained from Jesus, then he is Christian enough to practice scientifically and deal with his patients compassionately; and the result will correspond with the spiritual intent.

"The great and noble characters of all times have been those who held in thought an unselfed purpose of service to the race. Christian Science teaches that every man and woman may attain the ideal of Christ manhood or character, in proportion as they demonstrate in their lives that the real man is the reflection of divine love."

Plaintiff Who Sought To Prevent Contract Letting Drops Suit

Special to The Star

[illegible] GILEAD April 23 A court [illegible] to be heard to delay [illegible] construction of a new school building at Iberia was dismissed in common pleas court Friday by Judge W P Vaughan.

Clarence Tuttle of the Waldo-Iberia township school district [illegible] had been asking an injunction restraining the board from awarding bids Friday as had been planned and from awarding any contract for a building in connection with the plans and specifications of Austin and Austin Architects of Akron. Tuttle is employed by the board.

Judge Vaughan found a temporary restraining order but modified it Friday morning to allow the board to receive the bids and tabulate them Friday afternoon. Rev Virtue of Columbus a member of the architectural firm and County Superintendent H O Hanna conferred with Rose ing Attorney Fannie Myers and a Columbus firm of attorneys was retained to fight the injunction. Shortly before the time set for the hearing on the restraining order Clarence Tuttle asked that the suit be dismissed.

Daily Proverb—More things are wrought by prayer than the world thinks of.—Tennyson.

Neville Chamberlain has been intimating to Britishers that they live too long, death duties during the last two years having decreased about $83,000,000. Can't Neville appeal to their patriotism to come to the aid of the country by "kicking off" more expeditiously?

Dean Inge is hopeful of the fate of the universe; he questions the idea that it must end in nothingness. That man isn't half so gloomy as has been held out in references to him. As gloom dispensers, there are a lot of people here in this country who have him "beaten to a frazzle."

A Northwestern university professor asserts, after a careful survey, that money devoted to philanthropic purposes in this country annually amounts to more than $2,500,000,000, of which approximately one-half goes for religious purposes. Religious institutions should make a mighty good showing with support such as that.

Professor Edward Thomas Lee, of John Marshall Law school, a day or two ago told the senate judiciary sub-committee that Chicago is practically as arid as the Sahara. That gives us an absolutely new conception of Africa's great desert.

The United States census bureau estimates that there is a radio set in four of every five homes in Cook county, Illinois. For some reason this doesn't fit in exactly with these stories of hardship of which we hear from time to time as being general throughout the country, but it may be that in part it is the explanation of a lot of them.

Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, speaking as a "Catholic citizen," chides the churchmen who use radio to utter "froth" to "the whole world." It may be particularly objectional, as the cardinal holds, in the clergy, but it's a cinch that the wearers of vestments can be held responsible for but a small, a very small, percentage of the "frothy" utterances.

The president of the Association Against Prohibition has sent letters to the members of the federal senate and house to show that the nation's drink bill from 1920 to 1931, inclusive, was $28,411,019,800; that the revenue lost to the government amounted to $10,081,000,000 and that the attempt to enforce the prohibition law has cost the country $370,000,000. If he's right, all we have to do is pay off the national debt and bring a return to prosperity is to persuade the fellows who "can drink it or let it alone" to cut out the poison for about seven or eight years.

The Long Resolution.

It can hardly be held that there have been many manifestations of high statesmanship on the part of our federal lawmakers during the present session of congress, but plays to the gallery, appeals to mass support, and evidences of the legislative commonplace and the grotesque have been almost ceaseless.

Under whichever of these heads it may be classified, the resolution introduced Thursday by Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, may be cited. It provides that the tax bill be so written that no person would be allowed to make more than a million dollars annually or receive gifts or inheritances of more than five millions.

Having rejected the sales tax, which would have allotted the burden of meeting the deficit on all citizens according to their means, and embarked on a policy of "soaking the rich" for the purpose of raising the revenue necessary to that end, what could be more inconsistent with the purpose of that policy than limiting the annual earnings of any person to $1,000,000 and inheritances to $5,000,000?

Granting the possibility that a limited number of persons may be able to make $1,000,000 annually under present conditions, what would be their inducement to make more than that if all in excess of a million were to be confiscated by the government? What would be their inducement to lay up riches if they were unable to pass them along to survivors of their kin? What would be the return from income taxes in the higher brackets were such a limit fixed on personal earnings? What would be the incentive to employ capital in business or industry and give employment to thousands, possibly to tens of thousands, were there a limit beyond which that business or industry could not be operated without risk of the confiscation of the returns therefrom? How could there be stable employment under such conditions?

If all reports are to be credited, Mr. Long made something of a spectacle of himself as governor of Louisiana. Judging by his resolution, he seems destined to repeat himself in the United States senate.

OK—When the Millennium Is Here.

In times of economic recession such as our country has experienced for the last thirty months, the invariable rule has been that the many proposals and suggestions looking to reduction of the cost of government have constituted a seemingly endless array, and the present is in this respect in no way an exception to the rule.

The very latest suggestion to this end comes from Chicago. If followed, it would reduce the staggering costs of elections to the minimum and obviate as well the great majority of the untoward incidents and happenings common to elections, particularly those attending on elections in the great population centers.

The plan—let us call it that—was evolved by the manager of one of Chicago's leading hotels, and was rapturously received by the members of the State Street association of that city, to whom it was proposed. It is not a new principle in election procedure, but rather a marked broadening in the application of an old one. It is the holding of all elections by mail.

Under the plan of this Windy City hotel man, the election boards would send out ballots to all persons legally qualified by registration and otherwise to, exercise the right of suffrage. The voter would mark his ballot to meet his desires and mail it back to the election board on or before the expiration of a fixed date.

This method of voting, to be utilized both in primary and regular elections, would obviate the cost of judges and clerks of elections and the maintenance of voting places, to say nothing of the cost of armed guards in many cities to prevent the corruption of the ballot by acts of terrorism.

As is the case in so many proposed reforms, and in many which have been adopted, this plan is not without its fly in the ointment. It would inevitably make elections a matter of bargain and sale. The ballots, once in the hands of the voters, would become articles of merchandise. The holder of such a ballot could hawk it about and sell it to the highest bidder, marking it to meet the demand of the buyer and turning it over to him, as an evidence of good faith, to mail. In a word, it would simply broaden the field for corruption and make elections events of barter.

No! After thinking the matter over, one is just about forced to the conclusion that this bright idea from Chicago for cutting the cost of government will never do; not, at least, until public morals generally have been markedly improved. Perhaps it will prove acceptable when the millennium arrives, but hardly before.

Where the Railroad Dollar Goes.

To make understandable to the public the application of the receipts of his road, F. J. Fell, Jr., vice president and comptroller of the Pennsylvania railroad, this week made public statistics on the income and outgo of the system in 1931 without mentioning a sum so large as a million dollars. In fact, it was a demonstration by the use of cents and parts of cents, 100 of them being utilized as a unit.

It is of particular interest to know where these 100 cents, representing the income of the system, went. He tells us that 47.67 cents out of every 100 cents of income went to employes for wages; that 3.83 cents went to the mining industries for locomotive fuel; that 13.89 cents went to manufacturers and dealers for materials and supplies, that 2.17 cents went to miscellaneous payees and that 3.27 cents went to other companies for rental of equipment and joint facilities. Thus it may be seen that of every 100 cents taken in, almost one-half was devoted to the payment of wages, and 70.19 cents went to employees of labor, who very probably made a similar recompense of almost half their receipts to labor.

Of the balance of the 100 cents—21.94 cents—4.32 cents were applied to reserves, to depreciation and to retirements; 2.42 cents to claims; 6.89 to federal, state, county and municipal governments for taxes and 10.05 to bond and mortgage holders and others for fixed charges, leaving 1.96 cents available for dividends to stockholders.

It is exceedingly well that our law-makers are at last beginning to appreciate the fact that the time is at hand to cease the campaign of unfriendly legislation so long waged against railroads and recognize them as among the country's greatest employers of labor as well as, in the aggregate, its chief inland transportation agency.

"Heaven help the sweet old-fashioned girl today," remarks Flora Rose. Why worry about the non-existant, Flora?

General J. Warren Keifer.

Major General J. Warren Keifer, one of the last three generals who saw service in the war between the North and the South, died at his home in Springfield at an early hour yesterday at the age of ninety-six.

General Keifer enlisted in the Union army in response to President Lincoln's first call for volunteers. Eight days later he was commissioned a major and, grade by grade, was elevated until he wore the two stars of a major general—being the youngest man of his rank at the close of the war—insignia he again wore in the war against Spain as commander of the First division of volunteers of the Seventh army corps.

A man of commanding figure, an attorney of ability, a veteran of two wars, a member of the Ohio senate, for fourteen years a member of the lower house of congress over which he presided for two years as speaker, a man standing high in the councils of his party, for half a century General Keifer was a figure in the public eye.

It is worth noting that the general, who fought through the Civil war, participating in the campaigns in West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama, was for a number of years before the World war and following that conflict an outstanding champion of world peace. It is also noteworthy that despite his long service in the war between the states, during which he was four times seriously wounded, he lived to attain almost the century mark, outliving all other generals of that war save General Adelbert Ames, of Tewksbury, Massachusetts, and General Fred Pierson, of New York.

"CAN YOU FLY HER ALONE?"

Editorial Opinion.

GAMENESS IN ADVERSITY.

When Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Board of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, said that the "rich man has virtually vanished from the American picture," he came close to speaking the literal truth. And the fact that so far-seeing and substantial a person as Mr. Schwab finds it necessary to include himself among those once specially affluent persons whose wealth has become problematic, is sharply significant of the general situation in the country.

The process of readjustment and reorganization which is going on throughout the United State is doing strange things to wealth. Large numbers of persons all over the nation, who two or three years ago had reason to believe that the question of money on which to live in comfort or luxury, never would arise in their lifetimes, today are "broke." Some of them are away "under water." A part of them will recover in time. Others never will be able to swim to the surface again. This is true in Detroit, as it is in other places. Hundreds here who once were rich, find themselves in actual poverty.

Perhaps you don't hear very much about it. For to a remarkable extent those who have been hit hardest are taking their medicine like men and women. They do not inform the public of their troubles. They stand the gaff and remain silent. They try to emulate the optimism of Mr. Schwab who insists that the lean years will pass as the famine period of old Egypt passed, and says that things "will ultimately be all right" and that the "only thing for the real man to do is to build for his home and build for his country and its future."

That sort of steadfastness and gameness is the real hope of the United States. It is the spirit of the thoroughbred who plays the game in good fortune and in bad. It stands in significant contrast to the spirit of the counter-jerk who becomes arrogant in prosperity, but left who becomes arrogant in prosperity, but whines, complains, and wants everything upset if adversity overtakes him.

The thoroughbred is too busy readjusting himself to meet circumstances, he is too busy trying to do his part toward getting the nation back on its feet, to go about blaming the world, and bewailing his lot in torn garments and with dust on his head. Even where he finds that he is able to do little or nothing in an active way, he still remembers that he can help by keeping a stiff upper lip and retaining his faith in Providence and the future.

The calls for considerable heroism sometimes. But our land was founded on heroisms and by men who laughed at difficulties and troubles and ultimately brushed them away. And it will continue to be a great, progressive nation just as long as it continues to breed people who are capable of heroisms. That is why Mr. Schwab speaks of a certainty, when he says we will come out of our present trouble in due time.—Detroit Free Press.

MAKING A NAVY EARN ITS KEEP.

With trade sadly reduced by the Chinese boycott Japan has commissioned some of its warships to overcome sales resistance in the Far East.

The vessels are laden with that bric-a-brac and various articles of utility and ornament which Nipponese business men know find a ready market and will visit Singapore, Batavia and the principal Australian and New Zealand ports. At Manila it is said that $10,000 worth of goods was disposed of during three days in that port. Japanese products seem to be generally popular in the Philippines, which are said to buy $9,000,000 worth of them a year, though few Filipino products are bought by Japanese.

This is not the only fashion, however, in which the Mikado's war fleet will be made an asset to instead of a liability on the budget. While the floating fair, equipped to make sales by sample as well as outright sales, was preparing for the voyage, a strong naval squadron sailed for the North with the Japanese fishing fleet. Under the Treaty of Portsmouth and other agreements, the Japanese have valuable fishing rights in waters close to the Siberian coast. There being now some friction over the rights, the cruisers and destroyers are sent along to guard the fishermen against any Russian attempt at interference.

May we not assume, however, that they will follow another role than that of merely watching, and that many a baited hook will be let down from a porthole or net drawn in full of flapping captives? With the order, "bait and cast when ready," fluttering at the masthead, the Japanese permissible ratio in naval armament ought materially to increase the season's catch in Ohkotsk and neighboring waters.

By sending squadrons to sea equipped with cash registers and the latest in commercial fishing tackle Japan is showing how a naval establishment can be made to earn its keep when no world war is on and no new incursions into Manchuria or Shanghai are for the moment being planned. The task at Geneva ought to be simplified by what it is doing.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Neuritis Should Be Treated.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

As I sit at my desk I have two papers before me. One is a letter from a sufferer of neuritis and the other is a medical address giving the recent advances made in this troublesome disease.

Neuritis is a common nerve disorder that has baffled medical science for a long time. It is an inflammation of a nerve. When it involves more than one nerve it is called neuritis. It is a painful condition, and often is confused with rheumatism, neuralgia and arthritis.

Inflammation in surrounding tissues may spread to a nerve and cause neuritis. It may also be caused by continued exposure to cold, irritation of the nerve by pressure or from a blow, or by a disease involving the nervous system.

At the onset of the disease the inflammation is confined to the sheath or covering of the nerve. As the disease progresses the nerve structure becomes involved and diseased.

In multiple neuritis, where many nerves are involved, they degenerate and break down. This is due to a poison which is taken into the body or is produced within the body. This form of neuritis is seen in cases of chronic alcoholism. A similar condition is found in lead workers and painters. These men become poisoned by continued exposure to lead. It usually involves the nerves of the wrist, producing the so-called "wrist-drop."

Pain and paralysis of the affected limb are the chief symptoms of neuritis. The skin around the affected nerve becomes glossy. Ulcers frequently occur. Often the only signs are mild discomfort and tingling sensations in the diseased part. The parts most commonly affected are the face, chest, arms and legs. When the affected muscles are squeezed there is marked tenderness.

To cure neuritis the cause must first be discovered and then removed. If due to lead poisoning, change of occupation is imperative. In chronic alcoholism the treatment is more difficult, and it may be necessary to remove the patient to a hospital. The poisoning may be caused by infected tonsils, teeth or gall bladder, or by some other diseased organ in the body. Cure can be obtained only by removal of the source of infection.

Complete rest in bed is best for sufferers with neuritis. This prevents fatigue and weakening of the diseased nerves and muscles. Massage and various electrical appliances are used to exercise and stimulate the nutrition of the muscles.

Neuritis is curable if proper care and attention are given. It may require months of care, but the ultimate outcome is good. Do not neglect this condition, for it is more difficult to cure when the nerves have become chronically diseased.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. A. M. Q.—What would cause black and blue marks on the body—they seem to come and go and are not bruises?

A.—This may be due to a condition known as purpura. Be sure there is no underlying infection. Your doctor will advise you more definitely after examination.

* * *

Miss F. L. Q.—What would you advise for a jumping nerve in the cheek, causing the mouth to go crooked for seconds at a time and then stopping again?

A.—See your doctor for examination and advice. Try to find the underlying cause first of all. Application of heat might prove soothing meanwhile.

* * *

Miss L. G. Q.—Do you advise large tonsils to be removed?

2. What do you think of fissure?

A.—Not unless infected.

2.—This condition requires the attention of a doctor.

* * *

Blondie Q.—What do you advise for piles?

2.—What causes one to spit blood?

A.—Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

2.—Have an examination to determine the cause.

* * *

B. L. Q.—What causes puffiness under the eyes?

A.—This may be due to a kidney or heart condition. It would be wise to have a careful examination.

* * *

M. P. R. Q.—What do you advise for itch all over the body?

A.—Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will when the question is a proper one, write you personally, if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this paper.

Cure for Melancholy.

BY PAUL KECSKEMETI.

Berlin, April 23—(U. P.)—Melancholy, that mental state which so far has baffled psychiatrists, is due simply to lack of bromine in the blood, according to an astounding statement which the most specialist for internal diseases, Professor Hermann Zondek, recently made before the medical society here.

Professor Zondek, who was Stresemann's physician, lately has studied the chemical composition of the blood of mentally diseased patients. In every case, he found that whenever tests in the percentage in the blood fell below the normal average, symptoms of melancholy were detected.

* * *

On the strength of this discovery, Professor Zondek undertook to cure patients afflicted with melancholy by injecting small quantities of bromine into their blood. This cure, he announced, proved very efficient.

Melancholy, a frequent mental affliction, is also termed "circular insanity" because the patient's symptoms form a cycle, in which periods of apathy and despair alternate with a normal and even abnormally joyous mood.

Melancholia is known as a more benign form of mental disease than dementia and paranoia, which constitute other important groups of mental ailments.

* * *

While these latter forms of insanity are usually incurable and require continual treatment in institutions, melancholia usually improves under treatment so much that even return to mental normalcy is often attainable, although the possibility of a relapse remains even in successful cases.

The discovery of Zondek has led psychiatrists to hope that from now on a more effective and radical treatment than that hitherto applied will be available.

It was always suspected that melancholia could be traced to an organic, and not merely psychic, origin. The Greeks attributed it to a supposed organ of the body, which they called the black gall—melaina chole—hence the name "melancholy." The question of the organic causation of melancholia seems to be settled by the new discovery.

Ohio Politics in 1874.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

Interference with the plans of political managers by the liquor question is no new experience in Ohio. One of the early temperance movements—the crusade against the saloon—shocked the Republican organization in the state as it had not been before in years, in the elections of 1874. It is true that the year before William Allen, Democrat, had defeated Governor Edward F. Noyes, for the governorship, but in the elections of the following year the Democrats carried their entire state ticket, which included two judges of the supreme court and elected thirteen of the twenty members of congress, to which the state was then entitled.

Massachusetts went Democratic that same year and the Democratic newspapers in the West began saying that it meant a Democratic president in the coming national election—1876. The Ohio Republicans began asking each other the cause of their undoing. Most of them charged it to the liquor agitation. William Henry Smith, who had been secretary of state and was then the "Old Figgers" of the party, writing of the party defeat to Senator Sherman said: "The crusade and the inflation movement were the chief factors of our disaster." Before the election, Governor Noyes had written to Sherman that "our political affairs are in an uncertain state. The temperance crusade is an embarrassing thing, but we hope for a satisfactory solution. The Democracy are solid against the temperance movement while it divides our party badly. It is hard to deal with." Evidently the liquor organization was throwing its support to the Democrats as more favorably inclined to the traffic.

Note how, entirely by accident, a movement started here in Ohio that had far-reaching effect. Dr. Dio Lewis, stopping to deliver a lecture on foods and nutrition at Hillsboro, stepped aside from his written lecture to suggest to the women that they could band together to do much to abate the saloon evil, and the suggestion was acted upon, the movement spreading like wild-fire all over the state and into other states. The saloon was in politics at one sudden jump.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Tuesday, April 23.

Friends learned that Miss Grace Messenger and Mr. Orn Pratt were married in Windsor, Canada, April 15.

Lewis Trimble, eighty-two years of age, one of the Marionites of long-continued residence here, died at his home on north Main street.

Elizabeth Mary Cloud and Pearl H. Wingo were licensed to wed.

Marion was undergoing a thorough spring clean-up.

Miss Effie E. Stevens and Mr. William F. Cubbison were married by Justice Charles E. Gumpf.

Mrs. Hattie Smith, of Bristol, Tennessee, and Mr. Eber Russell, of Marion, were married in the parlor of Monnett hall, Delaware, by Rev. Eugene Rush.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, April 23—Any day now I'm going to slip on a white robe and sandals and become priest a new cult. This cult will fight the English parlor games. Every place I go, they've just dug up a new one. Try to settle down to pleasant conversation and pouf! the party's a game.

They drag out bridge tables and backgammon boards and talk freezes up. Then you must sit around trying to appear unconcerned while waiting your turn. Last night I paired off with a nice number in one of the shadowy alcoves to talk things over.

She was simply dying to know how I thought up all the things I write and once I'm started on that, nothing stops me, but that vacant look from my wife. I kept nothing back, digging in high lights of my early life in India. Not exactly in India, but Ohio is right near to Indiana.

When she asked if I knew Richard Harding Davis I'd chuckle knowingly. "Know him? After all that's not really fibbing. I was one of the Paris where Villon walked, the lagoons off Tahiti putting over a casual remark about the graceful curve of her swan like neck. Was I hitting it off?

Just as I was getting ready to lionize her in an African jungle background a crowd began to gather in the doorway and look me over. As much as to say: "The elderly Happiness Boy is having himself too much of a good time. We'll spike that old dodo."

So they suggested ping-pong. Anybody who would play ping-pong would suck eggs. But I merely laughed in the upper key, flicked imaginary fluff off my sleeve and cooed: "Of course, if this charming lady prefers. I suppose they would all be seated before the crash."

I fancied her sneering, "Play ping-pong with I can talk to such a brilliant." Yet I made such a bargain. Instead of protesting she clutched my coat lapels and gurgled, "Let's." And off we went in a skip and toddle. She skipping and I toddling.

* * *

We chose sides by drawing straws—and if drawing straws isn't Nance stuff Al Capone is a goody-goody. I was mated with a rather severe lady who took her ping-pong to heart. We were handed paddles, the crowd grouped around and the battle was on. Keep the telegraph wires clear!

* * *

You'd be surprised at my first few smashes. We pinged and ponged forward and back like the Old Harry and then I would have to reach for a wide one with a curve. Reaching was never up my street. I'm more of a handsome-lap boy. Always I over-reach and this was no exception. Snap went my galluses in the back. It was no time to get panicky. While they cheered and screamed "Bravo" I kept on leaping hither and thither for all the world like that proletarian platitude, "Cool as a cucumber." Sometimes I think I'm part Tilden. Playing the game to the end!

* * *

Or rather almost to the end. Just when the trousers took on a baggy effect at the ankles, I put on my act. Slapping at the ball, I faked an accident and dropped, writhing. Don't wince so, Madame. I'm not badly hurt. Just the ankle bone snapped. Keep the guests amused. I'm splendid. Tell the boys to sing "You Try Somebody Else." Start the dancing. See, it's nothing; I can stand on one foot. I'll be out in six weeks and ready for another game. Wonderful of you to have me. Remember me to the Duchess!

* * *

Thus hobbling to a cloak room I could tear at the slipping trousers and not a soul suspected. What right has an old mossback such as I to play children's games anyway? I'll wind up yet on one of those hardwood floors with a cracked hip playing blind man's bluff. Or do a Brodie into a cellar trying to pin the tail on the donkey.

* * *

My hatred of games dates back to the eighth grade when tiddly-de-winks was hot stuff in our town. Somehow they roped me into one of the match games and just to make it all silly I won. The local weekly carried an item something like this. "Master Odd McIntyre is now the tiddle-de-winks champion in Miss Lupton's class." It was a year before the gang quit yoo-hooing.—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, April 23—Secretary Stimson may find it hard to convince some people around Washington—particularly a few gentlemen in the United States senate—that his trip to Europe is solely in the interest of the Geneva arms conference.

It was stated very carefully in official quarters that the secretary of state's visit was merely to cooperate with the American delegation at Geneva—nothing more.

But the statement hardly had been made before speculation was rife in the capital as to what the Stimson visit meant.

With European statesmen discussing war debts, reparations and the like, how, the skeptical ones ask, can he refrain from discussing with them such questions so vital to them and to this country?

And the fact that the moratorium on war debts will expire on June 30, they say, would seem to make such discussions inevitable.

* * *

Whether Secretary Stimson desires it or not, it would seem almost impossible for him to steer clear of this pressing topic.

Some have gone so far as to suggest that before the secretary of state concludes his European visit he may involve the United States in some sort of war debt agreement.

Actually, it was Stimson's plan all along to go to Geneva. His original idea was to go to the conference after the preliminaries had been gotten out of the way, and when the time had come for serious grappling with the actual details of the various proposals. His information must be such as to convince him that the weight of this government and his office soon thrown into the scales at Geneva will bring about a decision.

It is believed not likely that he would take such a step if there was a possibility of his suffering a rebuff.

* * *

He and President Hoover had opportunity to talk the situation over with one of the delegates. The secretary's announcement of intention to go to Geneva follows almost immediately the visit to Washington of Norman H. Davis.

It was Davis' report in all probability that led to his decision.

Whether his visit to Geneva has other than his stated purpose, remains to be seen. Perhaps he will have opportunity to obtain the latest information on what European interest in the debt situation are is certain.

Whether he will avail himself of such opportunities is not so certain.

Dinner Stories.

"Do you resent criticism?"

"Not so much as I used to," answered Senator Sorghum. "Criticism shows at least that the folks are paying attention to your remarks."

* * *

Mrs. Brown's laundry lady informed her that she had taken unto herself a husband.

"I hope he will be good to you and support you, Martha," said Mrs. Brown.

"Oh yes'm, he sure will. Last Christmas he done give me a lovely fur coat an' I've got it most all paid for."

CHAPTER SIX
Worth a Bejons

A FULL deep tide of e o came rushing back o Georg es face

I'll marry you before you go Ed Tomo row if you like Girl

Bu here s a condition You must keep our marriage secret so that I can hold the ob

There was a pause Eddie pushed back the leather beret and dubbed his head violently

How re you going to keep 10 days honeymoon a secret" he objected Yours had your holiday

There'll be no honeymoon Ed—only this week end and we'l have to spend that in town in case the Old Man sends for me But during next week he'll be away I'm not to go with him this me so I can shorten my working hours a bit and we shall have a good lit e of the days to o rselves And when you come in Mexico up—

If you think I'm coming back to a wife who won't own to having married me—"

We can talk about this when the time come I'll promise nothing Her voice dropped persuasively Come now old dear there are hundreds of married women still at their jobs doubling their husband's incomes for them giving them a chance of a bit of fun when they go home at night instead of mowing the lawn or mending the wireless

I get my fun flying When I'm not flying I want a home

For a second there hung before Georgie's mind the picture of a little house windows open to the sun gay curtains swinging A home And then her vision shifted to the place of all o hers that seemed most to stand fo her job—her own private room at he Matching head office She saw again her desk with its telephones and bell pushes the pigeon hole in to which she thrust her big weekly check

It was to the second picture that she clung After that how could she find anything but frustration in the little house"

You'd get your fun flying Ed That's the gist of it For me there'd be nothing to do but count the pennies while you were away and help you count them when you were home You can't ask it of me Especially as I should have to start off with being a grass widow for a year

He stared at her rubbing his head his lips moving in half audible speech He looked huge bafled rather pathetic

Ed she whispered tender

We get married on orrow and then go to some hotel or other here in town" he questioned And I suppose the ugly interment at your apartment phones on a message from the Old Man"

She was shaking her head laughing a little

You innocent Much chance I'd have that was of keeping my marriage secret No it's Jenny who will go to a hotel for a bit and I'll use have the apartment to ourselves till you go I can fix it all up" She came around the desk and close to him laughing up into his sulky eyes It's so simple dear stupid and so—heaven's nice

The blood mounted in his face and he caught at her arm As she sharply freed herself a bell rang on her desk one whirr long insistent She gathered up the typescript an envelope and sealing wax and made for the door

Am I to expect you tomorrow L

You'll be summered All right Anything you say A any rate until I get back from Mexico I'll write down time and place and leave it here on this desk Girl—my girl—

But more sharply than before she jerked part his detaining hands and sped from the room

As Georgie went across the upper hall the bell rang again and yet again Her lips tightened Three years ago she had vowed to herself that never whatever he did or said should the Old Man make her lose her temper Control had become a habit now but occasionally—as tonight after a long hard day and an emotional evening—it was a habit that wore thin

Good night Miss Revell

The general manager was making his way to the sun

Oh I didn't see you Mr Croze Good night

She turned down the side corridor and heard the sound of yet another bell This one was rung by her own hurrying feet as they pressed on the mechanism set in the corridor floor and it warned the Old Man of her approach All the same by the time she entered the enormous bed chamber he was ringing for her for the fourth time

She came imperturbably across to the four poster and tendered the typescript Already his withered hand was waiting twitching and fluttering to snatch the papers from her

For perhaps 30 seconds a blessed calm prevailed Then—

Provisionally—I said provisionally His falsetto broke in a jangle of excitement He glared up at his secretary his face contorted his throat working This is no good any of it It's an imbecile attention on your part I never dictated any of this If I weren't surrounded by incompetent imperti nent

I think if you read on sir you'll find you used the word in the third paragraph She pointed—and her chief in an access of exasperation slapped her finger aside A provisional loan for which the collateral security—

That'll do That'll do Shouting out an important negotiation like this—d you realize that there are three men within a mile of us who'd gladly commit a felony to know what's on this piece of paper?

"Heart of a Wife"

Marion Returns to the Party and Becomes Belle of the Ball

MARION had made good use of the ten minutes I had given her for primping I saw that clearly when at the end of that time she came quietly back to her table and sat down next to Mr Owen She had experimented deftly with rouge and lip stick and I marveled at the skill with which she had applied them Instead of looking made up almost vulgar as did Avis Arlen she had only enhanced her own charming tints so skilfully that her face was like an exquisite frame for her big brown eyes brilliant with her excited uncertainty as to what had been planned for her

I had not been idle myself With Mary as a willing emissary I had been able to send word to Ronald and Noel of the roles I wished them to play I flattered myself that I had done this without attracting the attention of any one else in the room and that no one save those in the secret would have any inkling that anything which was to happen had been planned beforehand

Marion's Party Begins

The strains of a dance were just beginning as Marion took her seat Mr Owen leaned toward her but before he could speak Noel from one side of her table and Ronald from another stepped precipitately before her and asked her to dance

From the next table Avis Arlen betrayed her surprise with involuntarily lifted eyebrows for Ronald to all appearances had been her property all the evening and she had purposely parried Hanks invitation to dance in the expectation of Ronald's coming back to her table

There was no element of kindliness or consideration in Avis Her manner made it cruelly patent to Hank that she considered him just a preparatory school boy not to be considered when older college men were asking her to dance

Hank turned away striving valiantly to hide his chagrin but when Avis saw both Ronald and Noel besieging Marion and casting a quick look around discovered that the rest of the young men were already to Hank

"Don't be so quick I was only fooling"

You mean you don't see any body else to dance with Hank said with the effect of a growl

He came back nevertheless as she smiled at him

But I had no time to waste up on Avis behavior All my faculties were focused on Marion She was talking from Ronald to Noel in a feigned bewilderment that was as pretty as it was clever and I guessed that she was prolonging the agony for the benefit of Avis

But what am I going to do? Marion queried

That's is Ronald said manfully smiling down at her You'll dance this one with me and give the next one I got here two steps ahead of him

But I want two words behind Noel said, keeping up the ruse I'll carry her off now I promise I shall call in on you later I shall call gliding Marion to the dancing floor Carry it when the dance was at a quarter through Then Ronald exchanged a signal with Noel The clean looking man along to his chum who was not dancing and the next moment the boy had slipped on the shoulder tapping Hank away from Marion

His action was made him unconscious of the fact that he had done the worst thing possible for the girl's social success Young men are like sheep most of them The two most personable men in the room apparently "rushing" Avis while Marion's cavaliers were confined to a boy and a man past mid-

PING PONG MODE

Not the least interesting feature of the recent charity ping pong tourney at New York was this cute ensemble worn by Miss Betty Shuster one of the organizers who competed The outfit is comprised of shorts and a striped sports blouse die age They had taken their cues accordingly The well bred lads and ball players joined any girl to remain with Avis as partner but every one had seen that Avis Arlen had a place in the dancing with every young man in the

But no longer ing with a skin less like that ers the rest of the event would have been a nightmare ry in there and it was just the touch needed had been Mr Owen's initiative at the hands of Ronald and Noel to make the boys realize that Avis for all her lure of fascination was infinitely beneath them in dumbness and in beauty Marion Mary and Carolyn and that with out her vanquished trophies and her Paris gown Avis would be the least attractive girl in the room

What Will Verlie Say"

She was not left without a partner for any dance I saw to that for as our guest of honor I did not wish her humiliated much as I felt she deserved that punishment But even her vanity could not discount the fact that the mantle of popularity had evidently been lifted from her shoulders and placed upon Marion's

It was not her reaction however that was troubling me I watched Philip Verlizen furtively and found that he in his turn was scrutinizing Avis And when he tapped Harry Lyons on the shoulder as I was dancing with him and said I think I'll try this out in system I felt intuitively that it was not the man he wished of me but an opportunity to speak of Avis Arlen
